

Session and Roundtable Chairs and Presenters

Bios current at time of printing.

Eva Anneli Adams has experience including international education leadership, program and organizational development, university teaching, and she served the Department of State at the U.S. Embassy in Finland for 20 years. Active on national and international boards on education, Adams holds a Master's degree in adult education and PhD in higher education leadership. She has published on cultural competencies and sociology of leadership. Adams teaches educational leadership and leads campus internationalization at Cal Poly Pomona.

Lindsay Addington is Assistant Director of International Initiatives at the National Association for College Admission Counseling. She develops programs for and research around the counseling, recruitment, enrollment, and support of students looking to study in another country. Prior to NACAC, Lindsay worked at the American Council on Education's Center for Internationalization and Global Engagement and at the George Washington University's (GW) Office of Undergraduate Admissions. She holds a doctorate in Higher Education Administration from GW.

Jack Ahern is Vice Provost for International Programs and a professor of landscape architecture at the University of Massachusetts Amherst. He has been active in international education throughout his academic career including his PhD from Wageningen University, Netherlands, a Fulbright fellowship in Portugal, and lecturing at over 20 universities in Europe, South America, and Asia. At UMass, Ahern is expanding the mission of the International Programs Office to support campus internationalization.

Denis Akhapiin is Associate Professor and Deputy Dean of Academics at the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Sciences of Saint Petersburg State University (Smolny College), where he directed the Cognitive Research Program and directs First Year Seminar. Akhapiin holds an MA in Russian Language and Literature and a PhD in General Linguistics. He has published extensively, in Russian, on the poetry of Alexander Brodsky and contributed entries, in English, to the Dictionary of Literary Biography.

Gifty Ako-Adounvo is Director of International Students and Scholars at The Ohio State University. Ako-Adounvo is active in NAFSA and has presented on comprehensive internationalization and campus approaches to international student integration. She previously held faculty positions in the departments of Classics and African American and African Studies at Ohio State. Ako-Adounvo holds a doctorate in Classical Studies from McMaster University in Canada.

Sergio Alcocer is Undersecretary for North America at the Ministry of Foreign Relations of Mexico and former Undersecretary for Energy Planning and Technology Development at the Secretariat of Energy of Mexico. He is also President of the Mexican Academy of Engineering, and member of the Mexican Academy of Sciences and the National System of Researchers. In honors, Undersecretary Alcocer has received several distinctions and awards.

Teshome Alemneh is Program Officer for Africa at Higher Education for Development managing higher education partnerships and grants in sub-Saharan Africa. He was a research fellow & consultant at APLU and New Century Fulbright Scholar at SUNY, University at Buffalo. He has served as Deputy Minister of higher education and associate professor at Hawasa and Ambo Universities in Ethiopia. He holds MSc and PhD in Soils Sciences and Earth Sciences from Ghent University in Belgium.

Suzanne Alexander is Director of the International Office at the University of Leicester, U.K. Previously she held posts in management, marketing and distance learning at the British Council, Birmingham and Warwick universities. Alexander is a senior trainer with the European Association for International Education (EAIE) and presents on topics relating to international education strategies and the international student experience. Alexander earned a BA in French from the University of Birmingham and an MBA from the University of Warwick.

Alexandra Anda is the Outreach Coordinator at the U.S. Embassy in Ecuador. She is responsible for managing the Department of State's International Speakers program, and is the main point of contact for universities, outreach initiatives, and the Embassy's official Facebook page. She holds a BA in International Studies from Albion College in Michigan, and a MA degree in Latin American Studies from the University of Florida in Gainesville, Florida.

Dorothea Antonio is Senior Director of Internationalization Services at NAFSA: Association of International Educators, contributing to the association's strategies on internationalizing higher education and working closely with senior international education leaders. Her background includes international education, training, and development, with academic, government, NGO, and business experience. She has a BA from the University at Albany, TESOL certification from SIT Graduate Institute, and an MA in Latin American Studies from George Washington University.

Cathy Lee Arcuino is Director of International Programs & Services at Pittsburg State and oversees International Programs and Services, Study Abroad, and the Intensive English Program. She was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Kazakhstan as well as lived overseas in Japan, Thailand, Poland and Kyrgyzstan. Dr. Lee completed the NAFSA Academy and was the Conference Planner for Region II. Currently, she is in the NAFSA Training Corps and the IEM KC Liaison for Region II.

Heidi Arola is the EducationUSA Branch Chief at the U.S. Department of State. Heidi is a career diplomat and has served in Rio de Janeiro, Recife, Amsterdam, and Montreal. Heidi received her Associate's degree from Anoka Ramsey Community College in Anoka, Minnesota, her Bachelor's from Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana, and her Master's from Georgetown University, in Washington, D.C., where she was also Editor-in-Chief of the Georgetown Journal of International Affairs.

Lukman Arsalan, a native of Jordan, is Associate Director of Admission for International Recruitment at Albion College. He formerly headed undergraduate international admissions for the University of Delaware as the Assistant Director of International Recruitment. Prior to that, Lukman worked at the Institute for Global Studies at UD coordinating study abroad programs. He serves as member of the President's Advisory Committee on Intercultural Affairs, and is the Region VIII representative of Rainbow Special Interest Group of NAFSA.

Daniela Ascarelli is the Assistant Vice Provost of International Programs and the Director of the Study Abroad programs at Drexel University. During her time at Drexel, Dani has orchestrated the growth of Drexel study abroad options from less than a dozen opportunities to a portfolio of over 80 opportunities varying in length from one week to a full year; encompassing faculty led, student driven and more traditional study abroad formats.

Shingo Ashizawa is a Professor at Toyo University in Tokyo. His research involves the comparative study of higher education management and quality analysis of the internationalization review process. Currently, Prof. Ashizawa is leading a joint research project focusing on learning outcome assessment of international programs, supported by Japanese government agency (JSPS). His publications include "Strategies and Assessment for Internationalization in US Higher Education" (2008) and "Developing Evaluation Criteria to Assess the Internationalization of Universities" (2006).

Mariam Assefa is the Executive Director of World Education Services (WES), a not-for-profit organization based in New York and in Toronto, Canada. Assefa is active in international education and exchange and makes frequent presentations on foreign educational systems and the recognition of international educational credentials in the United States and abroad.

Fanta Aw is Assistant Vice President of Campus Life at American University. She is also Hurst Senior Professorial Lecturer in the School of International Service at American University. Aw is active in NAFSA and presents frequently on a range of issues including strategic international enrollment management, campus internationalization and diversity/inclusion. Aw holds a PhD in Sociology from American University.

John Bader, Chief External Academic Relations Officer for the IB, previously served as Associate Dean of Undergraduate Academic Affairs at Johns Hopkins University. His book, Dean's List: Eleven Habits of Highly Successful College Students, focuses on navigating the transition to college. John has a PhD and Masters in Political Science from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and a BA from Yale.

Jessica Bagdonis is Director of Program Quality and Impact at Higher Education for Development (HED). Prior she completed degree requirements for a dual-title doctorate degree in Agriculture and Extension Education and Comparative and International Education at Pennsylvania State University. Previously, she was a Senior Program Officer at the International Research and Exchanges Board (IREX). Bagdonis earned her master's degree from Penn State University and her bachelor's degree from American University.

Adria Baker is Associate Vice Provost for International Education at Rice University. She is also director of the offices of international students & scholars and Brasil@Rice. Baker has been active in NAFSA, IIE and Fulbright, presenting and publishing articles on an array of topics, but specifically on promoting international education exchange through advocacy, public policy and regulatory practice.

Her doctorate from the University of Houston concentrated on the sociolinguistic competence of international students.

Clare Banks is Assistant Director for International Partnerships and IIE Initiatives at the Institute of International Education, managing IIE's Center for International Partnerships. In her current role, Ms. Banks coordinates a number of programs focused on building sustainable partnerships among HEIs around the world. These include the International Academic Partnership Program, the Global Innovation Initiative and the Global Partnership Service. She holds a BA from Georgetown University and an MA from New York University.

Tim Barnes is the Director of Illinois Strategic International Partnerships (ISIP) at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. In addition to negotiating and managing all inter-institutional agreements linking Illinois with partners abroad, he works to identify, cultivate, evaluate and sustain a series of broadly and deeply impactful strategic partnerships with select peer institutions around the world. Tim also serves as the campus representative for the Fulbright Scholar program, and administers several campus-wide faculty mobility programs.

Britta Baron is Vice-Provost and Associate Vice-President (International) at the University of Alberta in Edmonton, one of Canada's top 5 institutions. She is a widely-recognized expert in international education and has held a number of senior leadership positions in Brussels, London, Bonn, and New York, including Director of the Canadian Universities' Centre in Berlin and various leadership roles in the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD).

Lisa Barrett is the Director of Global Partnership Strategy at Coursera. She has worked and lived on four continents, and spent the majority of her career in education innovation. Lisa oversees Coursera's partnerships with 110 institutions, of which the majority lie outside of the U.S. Lisa holds an MBA from INSEAD and a bachelor's degree from Yale University.

Sherif Barsoum is Director of ISSS at Vanderbilt since 2007. He is a strong supporter of study abroad and exchanges and served as VP Public Policy at NAFSA.

He frequently leads cross-cultural workshops and inter-cultural programming. He received his MA from Ohio State in Higher Education Administration and is working on his EdD at the University of Alabama.

Katherine Beaumont is Director of UBC Go Global and has led international learning programming at the University of British Columbia (Canada) since 2004 following earlier leadership roles in the University's Student Exchange and International Student Services offices and its Centre for Intercultural Communication. Katherine holds a M.Ed from McGill University, received the BCCIE International Education Distinguished Service Award in 2010 and the UBC President's Service Award for Excellence in 2011.

Jos Beelen is Senior International Officer at the Amsterdam University of Applied Sciences, where he is also a researcher and consultant on internationalization of the curriculum. In addition, he is chair of the Expert Community Internationalization at Home of the European Association for International Education (EAIE). He has published a range of articles on the implementation of internationalization of the curriculum and has acted as trainer and consultant at universities across the globe.

Larry Bell is Executive Director of International Education at the University of Colorado Boulder. Bell taught in and directed the IEP at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee for 12 years and has worked over 25 years in international higher education. His focus is services for international student retention. He has been active in international education professional associations over his entire career. Bell has a BA in Vietnamese and an MA in TOEFL from Southern Illinois University.

Susie Bender is Executive Director of International Engagement and Programs at the University of Idaho. She has worked in International Education for twenty-eight years, and is known for her presentations and workshops on experiential and intercultural learning. Previously, she directed the Office of International Students and Scholars at the University of Nevada, Reno. She received a PhD in Political Science in Public Policy and Environmental Policy from the University of Nevada, Reno.

Janet Bennett, PhD, has spent her career teaching, training, editing, and writing in the field of intercultural communication, with a particular interest in adaptation, intercultural training design, and intercultural competence. Currently, she is editing the SAGE Encyclopedia of Intercultural Competence.

Neil Besner is Provost and Vice-President, Academic and International at the University of Winnipeg (UW). Besner previously held various faculty and senior administrative posts at UW, including Chair of the English Department, founding Dean of Arts, Associate Vice-President, International, and Vice-President, Research and International. He has travelled the globe delivering lectures and teaching courses in English and Portuguese. He holds a doctorate in Canadian Literature from the University of British Columbia.

Rajika Bhandari, Deputy Vice President for Research and Evaluation at the Institute of International Education (IIE), provides strategic oversight of the Institute's research and conducts evaluations of international fellowship and scholarship programs. Dr. Bhandari is an expert on global mobility research and has authored four books on the subject. She holds a BA (Honors) in psychology from the University of Delhi, India, and received her doctoral degree in psychology from North Carolina State University.

Tim Birtwistle Tim Birtwistle is a former President of the EAIE. He is currently consultant to the Lumina Foundation and serves as a member of the Tuning US-EU Project Steering Group. He is Professor Emeritus Leeds at Beckett University, and a former UK Bologna Expert, Visiting Fellow at the Oxford Centre for Higher Education Policy Studies (Oxcheps) and an expert on Tuning.

Delores (Delo) Blough is the Director of International Student and Scholar Services. Delo earned her BS in Social Work from Eastern Mennonite University and her JD from Georgetown University Law Center. Prior to joining JMU, she served as the Director of International Student Services and Coordinator of Diversity Initiatives at Eastern Mennonite University for seven years. She has been involved in projects in the Harrisonburg community promoting diversity, multicultural awareness, and conflict management.

Francine Blume is Vice President of J-1 Programs and Director of the Cultural Vistas Office in Maryland. She has previously held executive positions at American University, where she served as Director of Experiential Education for over 16 years. She has over 7 years of experience teaching Justice and Peace studies at Georgetown University. Blume holds a doctorate in political science from the University of Hawaii and a bachelor's in sociology from the University of Missouri.

S. Mitsue Blythe is the Special Assistant to the Associate Vice President of Distance Learning and a PhD Candidate in Higher Education at Old Dominion University. She possesses extensive teaching experience in secondary and higher education settings and specializes in serving populations of diverse ethnic and financial backgrounds. She holds an MA in Literature with a concentration in writing and a BA in English, both from Longwood University.

Jim Bock is the Vice President and Dean of Admissions for Swarthmore College. Prior to Swarthmore he worked in the admissions offices for the University of Virginia and Connecticut College. He received his BA from Swarthmore College and MEd in Social Foundations of Education from the University of Virginia.

Helen Bond is Associate Professor in the School of Education and Department of Curriculum of Instruction at Howard University in Washington, DC. She is a former Fulbright Fellow to India and conducts research on education on refugee education. Bond's most recent publication is the co-authorship of the Teaching Respect for All Implementation Guide published by UNESCO in 2014. She holds a doctorate from Virginia Tech, a MA from West Virginia University, and a bachelor's degree from the Ohio State University.

Tom Bogenschild, a faculty member and Director, Global Education and Engagement Office, Vanderbilt University, has worked in international education for over 30 years, starting as a program coordinator at the University of Chicago in 1981. Trained as a cultural anthropologist with additional postgraduate training in social and intellectual history and political science, he holds an A.B. and an A.M. in anthropology and a PhD from the Graduate Group in Latin American Studies at U.C. Berkeley.

Veronica Boix Mansilla is principal investigator for Project Zero's Interdisciplinary and Global Studies Project. Veronica's research focuses on developing and nurturing an informed global consciousness among youth. She uses theories and methods in cognitive psychology, epistemology, pedagogy, and sociology to explore how experts, teachers, and students advance interdisciplinary understanding of topics of global significance, from globalization to climate change. Veronica chairs the Future of Learning Institute at Harvard and is the founder of L@titud.

Nick Booker is CEO & Co-founder of IndoGenius in New Delhi, India. He is also the India Program Director of the US State Department's Passport to India initiative for which he is co-faculty of a MOOC on the relevance of India to young Americans. He is active in both AIEA and NAFSA and presents frequently on the role of India in international education. He holds a Bachelor's degree in Philosophy from King's College London.

Gwendolyn Bookman is Director, Center for Global Studies and External Partnerships, and Associate Professor of Political Science at Bennett College. Bookman is an attorney who has worked in higher education administration for more than 40 years. She currently oversees all aspects of Bennett's internationalization of its campus and curriculum. In addition, she leads the At Home in the World initiative, and teaches both Introduction to Global Studies and several law-focused courses at Bennett.

Helen Bond is an Associate Professor at Howard University in Washington, DC. She teaches courses in the Departments of Curriculum and Instruction and African Studies at Howard. She has a PhD in Human Development, a Master's in Communication, and a BS in Education. Her doctoral dissertation focused on human rights education in Ghana. She served as a Fulbright-Nehru Scholar in India, an education expert in Ethiopia, and has authored a book published by UNESCO.

Gail Bowkett is the Director of Research and International Relations at the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada. With over 20 years' experience, Gail provides leadership on international relations and research matters and ensures the integration of these areas into AUCC's public affairs and advocacy priorities. Gail holds a Master of International Business Administration degree, Schulich School of Business at York University, and an Honours Bachelor degree, Russian language and literature, Carleton University.

Martha S. Bradley is the Associate Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dean for Undergraduate Studies and a Professor in the School of Architecture + Planning. She has received a number of awards for excellence in teaching. Her scholarship has focused on public history, gender and community, and religious community. In her current role, she has been instrumental in internationalizing the general education curriculum at the University of Utah.

Elizabeth (Betsy) Brewer is Director of International Education at Beloit College. A member of AIEA's Executive Committee and chair of AIEA's Editorial Board, she is also a member of the Forum on Education Abroad's Outcomes Assessment and Research Committee. Her work at Beloit College focuses on campus internationalization, the integration of study abroad into on campus teaching and learning, assessment, and faculty development.

Roger Brindley is Vice Provost and USF System Associate Vice President for USF World at the University of South Florida, overseeing the international student services and domestic students traveling abroad, while liaising with academic leadership on extending global curriculum development, developing sustainable multidisciplinary international partnerships, and supporting globally focused faculty research. Roger holds a BA from Middlesex University (London), an MA from Berry College (Georgia) and a doctorate from the University of Georgia.

Courtney Brown is Director of Organizational Performance and Evaluation at Lumina Foundation and a member of the same Project Steering Group. She is a very experienced researcher and evaluator and is involved in projects on both sides of the Atlantic.

Perry Brown is Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs at the University of Montana. Before becoming Provost, he served as Dean of the university's College of Forestry and Conservation. He has held positions at Oregon State University, Colorado State University, and Utah State University; produced over 100 books, book chapters and scientific papers in human dimensions of natural resources; and mentored over 60 graduate students to graduation.

Gonzalo Bruce is Dean of International Education at Emporia State University. In this capacity, he provides leadership in international recruitment and admission, study abroad, international student and scholar services and the Intensive English Program. He has been involved in international education for more than fifteen years, serving universities in the U.S.A. and abroad. Dr. Bruce holds an MA degree from the University of Pittsburgh and a PhD in higher education from The Ohio State University.

Emile Breneau is a post-doctoral fellow whose research project focuses on the psychological biases that drive social and ethnic conflict, and he is developing a number of tools to measure the impact of efforts made to decrease these biases. One of his current projects includes developing innovative tools to test the impact of virtual exchange programs on participants.

William Brustein is the Vice Provost for Global Strategies and International Affairs and Professor of Sociology, Political Science and History at The Ohio State University. He is the author of four books and 65 articles. Brustein is active in both AIEA and NAFSA and presents frequently on issues of international education. He holds an MA in international studies from Johns Hopkins SAIS and a PhD in Sociology from the University of Washington. Brustein is a Past President of AIEA.

Helen Bryant designs and implements a variety of international exchange programs, such as the TOMODACHI MetLife Women's Leadership Initiative for Japanese undergraduate women as a Program Officer with Cultural Vistas. As an educator, she develops programming for the International Visitor Leadership Program (IVLP), creating linkages between emerging global leaders and their U.S. counterparts. Bryant has taught in Asia and Africa, and she holds a bachelor's in Archaeology from the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.

Michael A. Brzezinski is Dean of International Programs at Purdue University. Brzezinski studied and worked in China for seven years during the 1980s. Dr. Brzezinski was instrumental in spearheading a funding model at Purdue that led to the creation of nine positions across campus that focus on providing service to international undergraduates. Brzezinski and his leadership team recently created a three person sub-unit within his office that focuses on integrating international students with American peers.

Ryan Buck currently serves as the Executive Director of International Student Affairs at Brooklyn College of the City University of New York where he oversees international student and scholar services and leads international initiatives in collaboration with divisions throughout the University. Ryan's expertise is in student affairs, strategic enrollment management, comprehensive international student services, and collaborating with internal and external stakeholders to enhance global engagement and cross-cultural experiences.

Thomas Buntru is the Dean of International Programs at Universidad de Monterrey. His responsibilities include study abroad and exchange programs, cooperation agreements, strategic planning, internationalization of the curriculum, and institutional internationalization. Under his leadership, UDEM has become the Mexican university with the highest student participation rate in study abroad. He has been an active member of the Mexican Association for International Education since 1997 and served as its president from 2009 to 2011.

Warren Burggren serves as Provost and VP for Academic Affairs at the University of North Texas. With a PhD in Physiology from the University of East Anglia (1976) and a BS in Biology from the University of Calgary (1973), he has collaborated with colleagues internationally to study lower vertebrates and crustacean invertebrates; the environmental and ecological physiology of intertidal, freshwater and marine ecosystems; and the evolution of respiratory and cardiovascular systems.

Jarred Butto is Program Officer for the U.S. Department of State. He manages the EducationUSA advising network in Southeast Asia and outreach to the U.S. Higher Education community. Previously, Butto served as Senior Program Specialist in the Center for Internationalization and Global Engagement at the American Council on Education. He holds a BA in East Asian Studies from Bucknell University and an MA in Social Service Administration from the University of Chicago.

Charles A. Calahan directs Global Learning Faculty Development in the Center for Instructional Excellence at Purdue University. As an award winning teacher, he taught over 12,000 students for 12 years in the College of Health and Human Sciences. Calahan's MS degree is from Purdue University and his PhD degree is from Kansas State University, both in the field of Family Science. His family includes his wife, 5 children and 5 very cool grandchildren.

Darryl Calkins is Dean of International Student Services and Enrollment at Northeastern University. Calkin was previously Vice President for Enrollment Management at Hawaii Pacific University. Calkin earned a Bachelor's in Political Science from Pepperdine University and a Master's in Ethics from Yale University.

Rosana Campbell is the Director of the Institute for International Studies at her alma mater, Lock Haven University. She is also the Principal Designated School Official and study abroad advisor. Campbell is a graduate of the NAFSA Academy, class of 2005. She has developed numerous partnerships abroad; the most recent includes an exchange program in Turkey. She holds a BA in International Relations and an M.L.A. from Lock Haven University.

Joanne Canyon-Heller is Director International Programs and Associate Director Admissions at Roosevelt University (Chicago). She is past president of NAGAP. She holds an MS Mgmt from National Louis University and was faculty member there. She presents on graduate school practices and on how prospective students should present themselves during the application process at both local and national events. She has given presentations in China on differences in admission processes between the US and Asian countries.

Christopher Carey is the Director of Global Gateways at The Ohio State University. He is also the US Program Director of the US State Department's Passport to India initiative. He previously held management experiences in the US Army, Morgan Stanley, and the Battelle Memorial Institute. He holds a BSc in Environmental Engineering from the United States Military Academy at West Point and an MBA from the Vlerick Business School in Belgium.

John Carfora is the Associate Provost for Research Advancement and Compliance at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles. Carfora is the former Co-Chair and a current member of "I-Group," a National Academy of Sciences committee on international research. He was a Fulbright Scholar to Ireland, received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Council of University Research Administrators, and was an IREX Fellow to Russia.

Kiki Caruson is Assistant Vice President for Research, Innovation and Global Affairs for the University of South Florida (USF) System. Caruson is active in both international education (AIEA) and research administration (NCURA, SRA) professional organizations and presents frequently about how to effectively promote international research engagement. Caruson is an active political science faculty researcher and Fulbright alumna. She co-chaired the 2014 AIEA Thematic Forum: "Growing Global Research" held at the USF Tampa campus.

Susan Carvalho is the Associate Provost for International Programs and the interim Dean of the Graduate School of at the University of Kentucky. She is a past AIEA Neal Presidential Fellow, ACE Fellow, and has served on the AIEA Executive Council. In her current role, she oversees the UK International Center and chairs the faculty-based International Advisory Council. She earned her PhD in Hispanic Studies from the University of Virginia.

Robin Catmur is Director of International Student, Scholar, and Immigration Services at the University of Georgia. Robin supervises seven colleagues who process sponsorships for over 2,400 internationals. Robin was an invited scholar to the USG Executive Leadership Institute for 2012, and Advanced Leadership Academy in 2014. Robin is the recipient of the NAFSA 2012 Award of Excellence. She holds a BA in International Development from UC Davis, and an MA in Globalization Studies from Dartmouth.

Mbye Cham is Professor and Chairman of the Department of African Studies at Howard University. His research focuses on oral traditions; modern African Literature; African and Third World Cinema; and the role of film in African Development.

Grant Chapman is Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs and Director for International Programs at Webster University. Since 1992, Grant has held several posts with Webster, having served as a faculty member, Director for the Center for International Education, and Director of the London campus. Grant presents on matters of international education and was a Fulbright Scholar. He received his Bachelor of Science from Oklahoma State University and MA/JD from St. Louis University.

Harvey Charles serves as Vice Provost for International Education and Professor at Northern Arizona University, and is currently President of the Association of International Education Administrators. He provides institutional leadership for international education initiatives, helps to facilitate international teaching, research and learning opportunities for faculty and students, and consults with institutions on curriculum and campus internationalization. Harvey earned his PhD in Higher Education & Student Affairs from The Ohio State University.

Mary Catherine (Scarborough) Chase is the Regional Director for European Programs at ISEP. She manages institutional partnerships within a global network of universities dedicated to student exchange and study abroad. Chase has presented at AIEA, NAFSA and EAIE conferences on transatlantic partnerships. Before joining ISEP she worked for the British Council managing higher education relationships in the United States. Chase earned her master's from the London School of Economics and bachelor's from Florida State University.

Addie Cheney is the Coordinator of International Programs at Western Kentucky University. She holds an MA in Germanic Languages and Literature from Ohio State University.

Miranda Cheng was previously the Director of the former University of Toronto International Student Exchange Office, and in 2010 became the Director of the new Centre for International Experience which serves both international students and learning abroad programming. Under her leadership, several innovative programs have been created including the Joint Minor Program between U of T and the National University of Singapore. In 2007 Miranda received the Internationalization Service Award by the Canadian Bureau for International Education.

Elena Chernyshkova heads the Center for Universities Marketing and Academic Recruitment at the 5-100 Project Office. She is also a founding partner of the education practice of Odgers Berndtson executive search company. Prior to joining Odgers Berndtson, Elena served as a Strategic Projects Director in SKOLKOVO business school. Elena is actively involved with NGOs, and is vice-chair of the Board of the European University at St. Petersburg; and Board member of Moscow Polytechnic Museum.

Rahul Choudaha is Chief Knowledge Officer & Sr. Director of Strategic Development at World Education Services, New York (wes.org/ras). He leads a team responsible for research, innovation and outreach. Choudaha is a frequent presenter at AIEA, EAIE, NAFSA, CEAIE and APAIE and blogs on international higher education trends as DrEducation.com. He holds a PhD in higher education from the University of Denver.

Kunliang Chuang holds a PhD in English literature from the University of Southern California and is currently a professor of English and dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at Feng Chia University, Taiwan. He used to serve as dean of the Office of International Affairs at National Taiwan Normal University for five years. He is also a researcher and advisor to the Foundation of International Cooperation of Higher Education in Taiwan (FICHET).

Jeremy Coats serves as Program Manager for the Carnegie African Diaspora Fellowship Program (CADFP) at the Institute of International Education. Jeremy has extensive experience with higher education in Sub-Saharan Africa including project development and implementation, curriculum development, teacher training, and monitoring and evaluation.

Craig T. Cobane was appointed as the Chief International Officer for Western Kentucky University in 2012. In addition to his role as CIO, Cobane is also the Executive Director of the Honors College, a position he has held since 2005. He also holds the Jarve Endowed Professorship in Honors and the rank of Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science.

Amy Jane Conger is the Assistant Vice Provost for Global and Engaged Education at the University of Michigan. She manages strategic projects that help U-M's academic units offer experiential learning opportunities for students and strengthen institutional platforms for teaching and scholarship. Dr. Conger's portfolio includes both international and domestic projects such as institutional partnerships and legal agreements; education abroad for academic credit; co-curricular experiences; and assessment of engaged learning.

James Cooney is Vice Provost for International Affairs at Colorado State University. Prior to his work with CSU, Dr. Cooney was the Executive Director of the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs at Harvard University. He is a former member of the board of directors of NAFSA. Dr. Cooney received his BA and PhD from Harvard University and MIT, and was a Fulbright Scholar and Deputy Director of the Aspen Institute Berlin.

Paige Cottingham-Streater directs the work of the U.S. CULCON Secretariat, the Japan-U.S. Friendship Commission and the U.S.-Japan Bridging Foundation. Prior to joining the Commission, she served as Deputy Executive Director of the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation and Director for the U.S.-Japan Project at the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies in Washington, DC. Ms. Cottingham-Streater holds a BA from Connecticut College and a JD from George Washington University.

Kati Csovan is Acting Dean of the Center for International Education at Juniata College, which was recognized in 2012 with the NAFSA Senator Paul Simon Award for Comprehensive Internationalization. Kati assisted in the drafting of the Juniata Global Engagement Initiative, which was first implemented in 2009. Kati served as an Adjunct Professor for the Monterey Institute of International Studies and has worked in international education administration at the University of Pittsburgh and the Pennsylvania State University.

Lyle Culver is a Professor of Architecture within the Honors Colleges at Miami Dade College. He has taken the lead on numerous initiatives and projects, receiving national recognition as an educator and leader. He has received various degrees from Florida International University, St. Andrew's university, and Washington University, St. Louis.

Jenifer Cushman is Campus Dean and Associate Professor of German at Ohio University Zanesville, where she serves on the OU system internationalization group and the Ohio Board of Regents internationalization task force. President of AIEA, Cushman participated in the University of Minnesota study abroad curriculum integration effort, served as Dean of International Education at NAFSA Simon-Award-winning Juniata College, was one of the first AIEA Presidential Fellows, and has since mentored for the program.

Heather Davis-Schmidt is Executive Regional Director of Missoula County Public Schools, and is responsible for research, development, and implementation of MCPS 21st Century Education Model. Before joining MCPS, she taught Curriculum & Instruction at the University of Montana, and was Dean of Students at Big Sky High School. She holds an EdD in Curriculum & Instruction and a M.Ed. in Educational Leadership from the University of Montana., and a BA in Political Science from Colorado College.

Darla K. Deardorff is executive director of AIEA, based at Duke, where she is a research scholar. Regularly invited to speak and consult around the world, she has published widely on international education, including The SAGE Handbook of Intercultural Competence (2009), The SAGE Handbook of International Higher Education (2012), and Demystifying Outcomes Assessment for International Educators (2015). She has taught at numerous universities including Harvard University's Future of Learning Institute. She holds a doctorate from North Carolina State University.

Josephine "Jozi" De Leon brings a lifelong passion and extensive career focused on diversity to her role as the inaugural Vice President for Equity and Inclusion at the University of New Mexico. Dr. De Leon is nationally recognized for her work in social justice issues and traditionally underrepresented students. She has been a faculty member, a department head, an associate dean, and an associate provost for academic affairs.

Montague Demment is Associate Vice President for International Development at APLU, former Director of the Global Livestock Collaborative Research Support Program, a program funded by USAID and the US university community, and professor emeritus of ecology at the University of California, Davis. In his position at APLU he has been involved in advocacy for higher education support for Africa and been instrumental in the creation of APLU's Africa U.S. Higher Education Initiative.

Duleep Deosthale is Co-Founder and Vice President of Admission Table, Silicon Valley, CA. He is the former AIEA-VP for External Affairs and was Associate Professor and Dean for International Programs at Marist College and VP for International Education at Manipal Global Education.

He is the in-coming Chair of the Conference Planning Committee of EAIE for 2014-2016. He has presented frequently at international education conferences. He holds a PhD from UCLA in Spanish Theatre and Politics.

Erich Dietrich is Associate Dean of Global and Academic Programs at NYU's Steinhardt School, and Assistant Vice President for NYU Global Programs. His office oversees 35 short-term graduate-level study abroad courses per year, manages graduate dual-degree programs, and supports graduate student research abroad. He teaches graduate courses on Internationalization of Higher Education and Race and Higher Education in Brazil (study abroad). He serves on the advisory board to IIE's Brazil International Academic Partnership Program.

David L. Di Maria is the director of international programs and services at Kent State University. In this role he oversees education abroad, international student & scholar services and international admissions across Kent State's eight-campus system. Additionally, Di Maria provides functional direction to staff in Kent State's representative offices and academic centers abroad. Di Maria earned a doctorate in educational policy and administration from The University of Minnesota.

John Dirkx is Professor of Higher, Adult and Lifelong Education at Michigan State University, where he teaches courses on curriculum, teaching, and learning in higher and adult education. He is director of a research study of short-term graduate study abroad. John is a team co-lead with the USAID-funded Global Center for Food Systems Innovation. John is the editor of The Journal of Transformative Education and former editor of Adult Education Quarterly.

Silvia Donoso is the Alumni Coordinator at the U.S. Embassy in Quito, Ecuador. She manages the United States Government alumni outreach and professional exchange programs. Before joining the Public Affairs team, she worked for 8 years at the Department of Defense's educational training office in Ecuador. Silvia holds a BA in Applied Linguistics from the Pontifical Catholic University of Ecuador and is currently pursuing her Master's in International Education at SIT Graduate Institute, Vermont.

Stephanie Doscher is Associate Director of Global Learning Initiatives at Florida International University (FIU). Her areas of responsibility include curriculum development, assessment, organizational leadership, program evaluation, and faculty development for global learning and comprehensive internationalization. Publications include, "Case Study: Florida International University," in M. Green (Ed.) Improving and Assessing Global Learning (NAFSA, 2013) and a chapter on FIU's global learning initiative in Universities and Human Development: A Sustainable Imaginary for the XXI Century (Routledge, 2013).

Jerry Drew was the Vice President of The Africa America Institute and the Executive Director of the Washington D.C. Office for fourteen years. He is currently an international consultant with more than thirty years of governmental and academic experience in developing and managing international higher education partnerships throughout Africa, Asia, South America, and Europe. He holds a BA in political science from Michigan State University and JD in international law from The University of Iowa.

Sara Dumont is the Director of American University's AU Abroad Office. Due to her expansion of program offerings, more than 70% of AU students now study abroad. She also established the "Abroad at AU" program that enrolls approximately 100 students each semester at AU from over 20 different countries. Previously, Dr. Dumont held positions at Yale, Duke and Towson universities. She earned her BA from Yale University, and her D.Phil. from the University of Oxford.

Jeanne-Marie Duval is Deputy Executive Director of the Higher Education for Development Program (HED) of the American Council on Education (ACE). She came to HED from the American Councils for International Education (ACTR/ACCELS), where she was responsible for scholarship programs for students from Eurasia. She held various positions over 17 years as staff at NAFSA: Association of International Educators. She holds a BA from Bryn Mawr College and an MA in TESOL from Temple University.

Natalia Dyba is the Director of Global Initiatives at the University of Washington Bothell, a UW campus recognized for its interdisciplinary academic programs, diverse student population and entrepreneurial spirit. Her role supports the growth of international efforts across campus, including education abroad, institutional partnerships, curricular integration, and opportunities for international involvement locally. She is a board member of the Greater Puget Sound Chapter of the Fulbright Association and was a 2013-2014 AIEA Presidential Fellow.

Rosie Edmond is the Regional Director (REAC) for the North East Asia Pacific region. While based at the U.S. Embassy, the REAC- NEAP office serves the EducationUSA advising network in Japan, Korea, Australia, New Zealand, and Pacific Islands. Prior to joining EducationUSA, Rosie worked in the field of international admissions and recruitment for more than ten years. Rosie is also the Co-Chair of NAFSA's Japan SIG.

Lorna Jean Edmonds serves as the Vice-Provost for Global Affairs and International Studies at Ohio University, leading the development of the university's global strategy. She has over 20 years of experience working in US and Canadian universities and has visited and worked in over 50 countries. Her interests and expertise are in strategy, the globalization of higher education, research, development assistance, policy and external relations.

Clark Egnor serves as Director of International Programs at the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission (HEPC) where he provides leadership and support for the international programs and initiatives at all of the West Virginia public state colleges and universities. Prior to his appointment to this statewide position in September 2013, Dr. Egnor served as the Senior International Officer at Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia for over 10 years.

Eva Egron-Polak was educated in the Czech Republic, Canada and France. For almost 20 years she served in various senior positions at the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC) prior to becoming the Secretary General of IAU in 2002. As Secretary General of IAU, Eva is engaged with the most pressing policy issues in higher education, including internationalization and intercultural learning, quality of cross-border higher education, and the changing nature of institutional autonomy.

Adel El Zaïm is the Executive Director, International at the University of British Columbia. He directs a professional team dedicated to supporting internationalization within the university community and enhancing visibility and accessibility of the university's expertise to the world. He holds a doctorate in linguistics from the l'Université de la Sorbonne, Paris IV, France and previously was a senior program specialist for IDRC based in Cairo, Egypt.

Mohamed El-Aasser is Vice President and Associate Provost of International Affairs at Lehigh University where he also continues to serve as a Professor of Chemical Engineering. Prior to this position, Dr. El-Aasser has served a number of other roles at Lehigh, including Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs. He received BS and MS degrees from the University of Alexandria (Egypt) and his PhD from McGill University.

Lisa Eli is Director of International Education at Valencia College in Orlando, Florida, where she has worked for 20 years. She oversees Continuing International Education Programs, including the Intensive English Program, and the office of International Student Services. She is focused on increasing international student enrollments, integrating students into the college and community, facilitating international agreements, and expanding international education programs. She holds a BA from Michigan State University and an MA from Rollins College.

Kathleen Fairfax is Assistant Vice President for International Affairs and Outreach at South Dakota State University. She began her career in the US Foreign Service. Kathleen served as chief study abroad officer at both Southwestern University and Purdue University before becoming Director of Study Abroad at Michigan State. She later served as Vice Provost for Global Education at Arizona State University. Kathleen received her BA from DePauw University and her MA from Indiana University, Bloomington.

Brad Farnsworth is Assistant Vice President of the Center for Internationalization and Global Engagement at the American Council on Education. The American Council on Education is the leading association in the United States devoted to higher education, with a membership of 1,600 colleges and universities. The goal of the CIGE is to promote internationalization among ACE's members through publications, research, advisory services, leadership development, conferences, and advocacy.

Tom Farrell is Senior Advisor to the Chancellor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, responsible for global strategy. Previously he served as Vice Provost of the University of Nebraska. From 2002-2009 he was Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Academic Programs. From 1987-2002 he was Vice President at the Institute of International Education (IIE). He also served as a U.S. Foreign Service Officer, a Peace Corps Volunteer in India, and a Fulbright Fellow in Pakistan.

Karin Fischer is a senior writer at The Chronicle of Higher Education, where she covers internationalization of higher education, global competitiveness, and colleges and the economy. Her work has appeared in The New York Times. She was selected for the East-West Center's Jefferson Fellowship program for reporting in Asia, is a recipient of the Paul Miller and National Press Foundation fellowships, and has been honored by the Education Writers Association. She graduated from Smith College.

David Fleshler has been Associate Provost for International Affairs at Case Western since 2009. He has held a number of positions prior to entering academia, including in law, government (local and national) and the not-for-profit and corporate sectors, in the U.S. and internationally. He holds degrees from the University of Michigan and Boston College Law School. He was a 2010-11 AIEA Presidential Fellow and currently chairs the AIEA Policy Advisory Committee.

Tanith Fowler Corsi is Senior Director of Regional Affairs at NAFSA: Association of International Educators. She is responsible for cultivating leadership development and diversity within NAFSA. Fowler Corsi is active in both NAFSA and AIEA. She previously held a Senior International Officer position at Catholic University of America. She holds a BA in Political Science from the University of California, Riverside, and an MA in International Communication from American University in Washington, DC.

Jose Celso Freire Junior received his Master's in Computer Science from University of São Paulo (1992) and PhD on Computer Science from University of Grenoble I (Scientifique et Medicale - Joseph Fourier - 1997). He is currently an associate professor at Universidade Estadual Paulista 'Júlio de Mesquita Filho' (UNESP), head of the International Office of the University, and president of the Association of Brazilian High Education Institutions Offices for International Relations (FAUBAI).

Isak Froumin is Academic Supervisor of National Research University "Higher School of Economics". He is a winner of the Russian Federation Government Prize in Education. Isak Froumin is an Advisor to the Minister of Education and Science of the Russian Federation. Professor Froumin's most recent publications are "Heterogeneity of the educational system: an introduction to the problem" and "University Expansion in a Changing Global Economy: Triumph of the BRICs?"

Bennett Yu-Hsiang Fu is Associate Dean of the Office of International Affairs at National Taiwan University. He is also Professor of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures at NTU. He is overseeing international collaborations, summer programs, and inbound and outbound students at NTU. Dr. Fu received his MA in English from the University of Rochester, USA, and PhD in English Studies from the University of Montreal, Canada.

Michael Gaebel is the head of the higher education policy unit at the European University Association (EUA). EUA is the largest organization representing the European higher education sector with 850 member institutions in 47 countries. Michael previously worked in higher education cooperation and development in the Middle East, the former Soviet Union and Asia. Michael graduated with a Masters in Middle Eastern studies and German literature and linguistics from the Freie University Berlin.

Annalena Galle is Assistant Director of the Clifford Chance International Office at Bucerius Law School in Hamburg, Germany. In her current position, Ms. Galle is responsible for organizing the mandatory semester abroad for all LL.B. students and, to an important part, contributes to the students' international legal education. She also assists with the organization and management of Bucerius' International Non-Degree Programs. Ms. Galle holds an MA in Applied Cultural Studies from Leuphana Universität Lüneburg, Germany.

Richard Garrett is North America Director for i-graduate, the UK-based higher education survey and consulting firm. The company runs the International Student Barometer, the world's largest survey of international student satisfaction. Richard was formerly a Vice President at Eduventures, the higher education consulting company. Richard holds a Bachelor's and Master's in Religious Studies from King's College London, and a Postgraduate Certificate of Education from the University of Cambridge.

Jane Gatewood is Associate Provost for Global Engagement at the University of Rochester, where she leads international initiatives. Prior to this, she developed international initiatives and programs for the University of Georgia—most recently, as the founding director of international partnerships. She has been an Andrew W. Mellon Fellow at the School of Advanced Study (University of London) and a Fulbright Scholar. She holds a BA from Emory University and a doctorate from the University of Georgia.

Helen Gaudette is the director of the Queens College Office of Global Education Initiatives. In this capacity, she works with faculty and administrators toward comprehensive internationalization on campus. A full-time member of the Queens College Department of History, she teaches various faculty-led study abroad courses. She won the President's Award for Excellence in Teaching in 2007. She was a 2013-2014 AIEA Neal Presidential Fellow.

Tsige Gebre-Mariam is Professor, Humboldt Ambassador Scientist and General Manager of the Regional Bioequivalence Center at Addis Ababa University (AAU) in Ethiopia. He was previously Vice President for Graduate Studies and Research and Dean of the School of Pharmacy. He has published over 100 manuscripts including "Graduate Studies and Research at Addis Ababa University." He holds a PhD in Pharmaceutics from the University of Wales, UK and has done post-doctoral research at Tübingen University.

Kate Geddie is assistant director, research, at the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC). AUCC is the national association representing Canada's 97 public and not-for-profit universities and degree-granting colleges. Previously, Kate worked as a postdoctoral researcher at the University of Lausanne and in the policy development unit of the European University Association. She holds a PhD in geography from the University of Toronto.

Vinitha Gengatharan is the Director, International Relations at the University of Toronto in Toronto, Canada where she holds responsibility for advancing the University's international profile. In this role, Vinitha has responsibilities for managing the University's international strategy, institutional level international partnerships, coordination of international activities, and agreements and manages high-level delegations to the University of Toronto. Her areas of interest include board governance, policy and developing sustainable partnerships.

Becky George is Director of the International Education Office at University of California Santa Cruz. She is active in AIEA, NAFSA, TESOL and is the current President of EnglishUSA (American Association of Intensive English Programs). She previously held a Director position at the University of Washington Educational Outreach and a faculty position at the University of Hawaii – Leeward Community College where she served as the Director of the Office of International Programs for ten years.

Chrystal George Mwangi is an assistant professor of higher education administration at the University of Massachusetts Amherst. Dr. George Mwangi has worked as a consultant with HED since 2013. Her scholarship examines cross-border partnerships in higher education, educational experiences of international students, and other internationalization efforts in U.S. colleges and universities. She holds an MS from Florida State University and a PhD in higher education administration from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Cheryl Gibbs is the Director of the Advanced Training and Research Division in the US Department of Education's International and Foreign Language Education office. She leads a staff that administers $61.1 million dollars in discretionary grants to institutions funded Title VI of the Higher Education Act, including, the Centers for International Business Education, Language Resource Centers, National Resource Centers, Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships, and the American Overseas Research Centers programs. She has 30 years of program and policy experience at the Department. Prior to her federal career Gibbs was a secondary English teacher in her home town of Sharon, Pennsylvania. She received a Bachelor of Science degree in English from Clarion University and a Master of Education degree in School Supervision and Curriculum Development from Westminster College.

Susan H. Gillespie is Vice President for Special Global Initiatives and Founding Director of the Institute for International Liberal Education, Bard College. Gillespie helped establish international partnerships based on mutuality and equality in "countries in transition" (Russia, South Africa, Palestine). Her publications include "Toward 'Genuine Reciprocity.' Reconceptualizing International Liberal Education in the Era of Globalization." in Liberal Education (Winter 2003), and a chapter in Practice and Research in Study Abroad, ed. Ross Lewin (2009: Routledge).

David Gilmour was appointed Deputy Assistant Secretary in the Bureau of African Affairs in August 2013. Previously, he was the Africa Bureau's Director of Public Diplomacy and Public Affairs, directing the deployment of public diplomacy personnel and resources at 48 U.S. embassies and consulates in Sub-Saharan Africa. Mr. Gilmour served as the Malawi U.S. Embassy

Deputy Chief of Mission and Chargé d'Affaires (2004-07), where he oversaw U.S. assistance programs that totaled nearly $100 million annually.

Margo Glew is coordinator of global initiatives and coordinator of the Global Educators Cohort Program, supporting efforts to enhance the teacher preparation program with global perspectives so that more teachers are prepared to educate students for success in a global society. Her academic interests include global education and second language acquisition and instruction. Her recent research involves working on a multi-national project to assess global-mindedness among undergraduate preservice teachers.

Waidehi Gokhale is Director of Partnerships and Development at Soliya a small technology enabled education focused not for profit. Having lived, studied and worked in the United Kingdom, India, South East Asia and North America, Waidehi believes firmly in the importance of effective cross cultural exchange in international education and peace building. She has 16 years of experience working in the fields of psychology and international development.

Andrew Gordon is the Founder and President of Diversity Abroad. He has written and spoken extensively on topics pertaining to access, diversity, inclusion, and underrepresentation in international education and exchange. He has consulted for higher education institutions, non-profit and for-profit organizations, and government agencies on diversity and inclusive good practices for international education. Andrew is a graduate of the University of San Francisco and studied abroad in Mexico and Spain, and interned abroad in Madrid.

Esther E. Gottlieb, Senior Advisor for International Affairs at Ohio State, implements internationalization plans and evaluates students' global competencies. She serves on the AIEA Editorial Committee and facilitated a colloquium on internationalizing STEM fields (NAFSA'14). Her research focuses on analysis of reform and policy discourses. Her recent article in Prospects is "Making Education World-class: 'ThinkGlobalOhio.'" She holds a PhD from the University of Pittsburgh in Comparative and International Education, and an MA from Case Western.

Rebecca Granato is Visiting Assistant Professor and Assistant Dean at Al-Quds Bard College of Arts and Sciences, where she has taught since its inception, and Associate of Bard's Institute for Writing & Thinking. Granato earned a BA from Bard College and an M.Phil. in Middle-Eastern History from the CUNY Graduate Program. Her PhD thesis at the Tri-University History Program, Waterloo, Canada, focuses on the Fatah resistance movement among Palestinian political prisoners (degree expected December 2014).

Mary Anne Grant is President and CEO of the ISEP Network, a consortium of 330 post-secondary institutions in 51 countries cooperating to promote student mobility for international education. Nearly 50,000 students have participated in ISEP programs. Grant presents frequently on international education topics, serves on the Board of the Forum on Education Abroad and has held several leadership positions with NAFSA. Grant received her MA from Georgetown University and BA from the University of Tennessee.

Mark L. Greenberg has been Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs at Drexel University since 2008. A specialist in 18th and 19th century British Literature, at Drexel he has also served as Professor of English, Dean of Undergraduate Education, Founding Dean of the Pennoni Honors College, and interim Dean of the School of Education. He earned a bachelor's degree from Queens College, CUNY, and master's and doctoral degrees from The University of Michigan.

Jeanine Gregersen-Hermans is Director of Student Recruitment and Admissions at University of Hull, UK. She publishes on topics of intercultural communication and marketing of higher education. Jeanine is a member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Studies in International Education (JSIE). She is member of the EAIE Professional Development Committee, senior trainer and past member of the EAIE General Council. Jeanine received the 2008 EAIE Bo Gregersen Award for innovation in international education.

Sarah Groskreutz is the Director of Human Resources in the Global Programs and Strategy Alliance at the University of Minnesota. In this capacity, she manages all human resource functions including hiring, orientation, performance management and staff and organizational development. Previous to this role, Sarah spent eleven years with the Learning Abroad Center, where she was involved with many aspects of education abroad including academics, advising and programming.

Christina Grossmann is the Head of the International Office, Faculty of Engineering of Lund University (LTH). Her work in establishing LTH membership in international networks for engineering education has enhanced partner university relations on all continents, and has led to LTH participation in multiple EU-projects, including double degrees. In 2002 she received the French award Chevalier de l'Ordre des Palmes MAAcadémiques. In 2009 she was awarded the Lund University prize for outstanding administrative achievements.

Jennifer Gruenewald has worked in international education for over 20 years. As Director of International Student and Scholar Services in the Center for International Education, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Jennifer provides leadership on international student recruitment, enrollment management, and international student and scholar immigration advising. Jennifer graduated with a Master's in Intercultural Communication from the University of New Mexico and worked for 10 years in various capacities with increasing responsibility at the University of New Mexico.

Guo Liang is Deputy Director of International Relations at Shanghai Jiao Tong University since 2010. Her work includes institutional internationalization strategy, overseeing its implementation, and supervising institutional partnerships. She has facilitated the establishment of a new Swedish Center and an Israeli Center. She has been instrumental in engaging the university more actively in Universitas 21. Her presentations at Asia Pacific Association of International Educators conferences were on "Building Joint International Institutes" and "The Challenges of Managing Exchanges."

Alexandra Haas is Head of the Political Affairs Section at the Embassy of Mexico in the U.S. She previously headed the Mexican Trade Bureau, ProMexico, to the U.K., South Africa and Portugal (2008-2011). She has had a career as a human rights lawyer and policy advisor, working as special advisor to the Director of the National Council against Discrimination (2011-2013) and was head of the Non-Discrimination Program for Human Rights Commission for Mexico City (2007-2008).

Steve Hagen is a Vice Rector for Change Management at the ITMO University. Previously he held various faculty and administrative positions in UK such as: Director of Institute of Enterprise & Professor at Warwick University; Director of Research, Business, Innovation & Professor at UWE Bristol; Deputy Vice-Chancellor & Professor, University of Wales Newport and Vice-Chancellor & Professor, University of Wales Newport. Prof. Hagen Authored 13 research reports/studies; 8 books (single-authored and/or edited); 24 articles/book chapters.

Joann Halpern is Director of the German Center for Research and Innovation. She has extensive experience in the internationalization of universities. She is currently Adjunct Associate Professor of International Education at NYU and has taught at Dartmouth, Harvard, and University of Magdeburg. Halpern has held administrative positions at Harz University of Applied Sciences, and the Global College of Long Island University. She received her BA from Dartmouth, her MA from Harvard, and her doctorate from NYU.

Michelle Hampton is the Director of Global Client Relations at Educational Testing Service (ETS). Hampton handles outreach and communications for the TOEFL and GRE programs with universities, secondary schools and overseas educational advisors and has presented at many national and international conferences. Hampton is a former Associate Director of Enrollment Services, PDSO and preparatory school College Counselor. Michelle Hampton received her BA in Psychology from Drew University.

Ursula Hans is Director of the International Office of Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin in Germany. As such, she deals with the strategy, networks, and international students programs as well as third-party funding for international activities. The rapidly developing summer school at Humboldt-Universität is also within her purview. Ursula has degrees from Bonn University and Bowling Green State University. She is an active DAAD board member and has worked in international issues for over 20 years.

Mandy Hansen is the associate director for the Center for International Education and director of international admissions and recruitment at Northern Arizona University. Hansen is an alumnus of the Fulbright Program for International Administrators and serves in leadership positions with NAFSA and NACAC. Her doctoral degree is in educational leadership with research in narrative inquiry titled "Lotus Strands: Higher Education Women in Senior International Officer Positions Weaving Robes of Gender."

Michael L. Hardman is Distinguished Professor and Chief Global Officer at the University of Utah. He has served as the university's Interim Chief Academic Officer and Dean of the College of Education. Dr. Hardman has directed several international projects on school improvement for USAID, OECD, and UNICEF. He has published widely in international journals, authored ten college textbooks, and directed numerous international research and training projects in the areas of education policy and reform.

Mark W. Harris is President & CEO of ELS Educational Services, Inc., a leading provider of international student recruitment for universities. ELS is the global leader in on-campus ESL instruction and pathways. Mr. Harris is a member of the Council of Senior Advisors of the International Association of University Presidents, AIEA, NAFSA, and was a founding member of the Japan Association of Overseas Study.

Julie A. Hatcher is Associate Professor of Philanthropic Studies and is Executive Director of the Center for Service and Learning at IUPUI. She is active in the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action and the International Association for Research on Service Learning and Community Engagement. Her research and scholarship is focused on service learning, civic learning outcomes, and campus-community partnerships. She served as the first Director of Undergraduate Programs in Philanthropic Studies.

Lisa Hauck is Director of the Office of Global Outreach at North Dakota State University (NDSU). She oversees a variety of international activities, including international student enrollment management, faculty and scholar immigration services, campus and community outreach and advocacy for internationalization efforts, as well as university-wide global outreach initiatives. Hauck holds a master's degree from The Ohio State University and is currently pursuing her PhD in education at NDSU.

John Hearn is Executive Director of the Worldwide Universities Network, the Australia Africa Universities Network, and Professor of Physiology at the University of Sydney Medical School. He works globally in higher education and research capacity development, with universities, governments, business and international agencies. He is an adviser with the World Health Organization, OECD and British Council. He held senior administrative, research and teaching positions for 6-7 years each in the UK, USA and Australia.

Margaret Heisel is currently a Research Associate at the Center for Studies in Higher Education at the University of California, Berkeley. Previously, Heisel was director of The Center for Capacity Building in Study Abroad, established by APLU and NAFSA. At the University of California, Office of the President, she headed a unit administering off-campus study programs for the University's ten campuses. Heisel holds a PhD in Latin American studies from the University of Kansas.

Robin Matross Helms is Associate Director for Research at the American Council on Education, where her work focuses on internationalization of US institutions and global higher education issues. Previously, she has worked for the Institute of International Education and the University of Minnesota, and served as a consultant to the World Bank and the Institute for Higher Education Policy. Robin holds a PhD and MBA from Boston College, and an AB from Princeton University.

Clay Hensley is the Senior Director of International Strategy & Outreach at the College Board. As a member of College Board's International team, Hensley helps oversee effective implementation of College Board programs, including the SAT and AP Program, in over 180 countries. He also supports College Board's higher education membership in recruiting prospective students internationally. He holds a BA in English literature from Vanderbilt University and an MFA from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Rodolfo Hernandez Guerrero is Director of International Partnership Development (IPD) and Senior Advisor to the Center for U.S. – Latin America Initiatives (CUSLAI) at The University of Texas at Dallas, where he led CUSLAI (2001-14) and the International Education Office (2005-14). Dr. Hernandez teaches courses on contemporary politics of U.S.-Mexico, has published in journals and newspapers, and participated in documentary T.V. and radio programs in Mexico, the United States, Argentina, Portugal, United Kingdom, and Australia.

John D. Heyl is founder of ILeaders.net, a website focusing on SIO leadership issues. He served as SIO at the University of Missouri-Columbia and Old Dominion University (VA). Heyl is former AIEA president (2000-2001), author of The Senior International Officer (SIO) as Change Agent (AIEA, 2007) and co-editor of The SAGE Handbook of International Higher Education (2012). He holds a BA from Stanford University and a PhD in European history from Washington University-St. Louis.

Barbara Hill is Senior Associate in the American Council on Education's Center for Internationalization and Global Engagement, working in the Internationalization Laboratory with institutional leaders to promote comprehensive internationalization. Hill consulted with Higher Education for Development, creating infrastructures through university partnerships and organizing workshops to disseminate expertise in international development. Hill participated in the Visiting Advisor Program/Salzburg Seminar, consulting in Russia and Eastern Europe about governance, finance, academic structure, and program quality.

Christopher Hill is Director of Research Training and Academic Development at the University of Nottingham Malaysia Campus and frequently writes on trends in transnational education. He has international experience delivering training courses in Ghana, Tanzania, Spain, Malaysia, Taiwan, Thailand, Vietnam, China and the UK. He is currently involved in research projects examining the impact of TNE on employability and student mobility in SE Asia and was awarded a 2012 U21 Fellowship to research Global Citizenship.

Harry Hill is the President and CEO of Oak Lawn Marketing, Inc. He also serves as chairman of the US CULCON Panel, Japan-US Friendship Commission, and Hope International Development Agency, Japan. Hill is also actively involved in the American Chamber of Commerce Japan and from 2012-13 served as chairman of the Electronic Retailing Association (ERA). He holds a BA in English Literature from Cornell University.

Heidi Hobbs is Director of the Master of International Studies Program and Associate Professor of Political Science, North Carolina State University. In addition to many national leadership roles, she has served as director of international programs in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, and as chair of the university's Committee on International Programs. Her most recent publication is a textbook with Harry Chernotsky, Crossing Borders: International Studies for the 21st Century, 2nd edition (2015).

James Paul Holloway is Arthur F. Thurnau Professor of Nuclear Engineering and Radiological Sciences, and Vice Provost for Global and Engaged Education at the University of Michigan. Vice Provost Holloway is focused on the ways in which the U-M engages the world through both scholarship and education. He has lived, worked and taught in Thailand, England, Germany, China, and Ghana. As Michigan's SIO he is responsible for international travel policy and safety.

Jun Hyun Hong is Former Vice President for International Affairs at Chung-Ang University in Korea. He is currently a professor at the School of Public Service at CAU and president of Korean Association of Policy Analysis and Evaluation. He is active in APAIE, NAFSA, EAIE and QS-APPLE and presents on issues of internationalization of Korean universities. He has served as advisor in various government agencies: Presidential Committee, Education Ministry, Safety and Public Administration Ministry of Korean Government. He holds a PhD in public policy from University of Pittsburgh.

Tom Howard has worked with universities abroad for nearly 25 years. He was the first Director of the Australian Education Office and served as the first Regional Director for AustrLearn. He was instrumental in starting The Scholar Ship, the former ship-based program. Tom has also worked with UK and Italian universities. He studied at the Ludwig Maximilians University in Munich, and undertook a year of Masters Study while serving as a Resident Director in London.

John K. Hudzik is NAFSA's Senior Scholar for Internationalization, past President and Chair of NAFSA's Board of Directors, and Past President of AIEA. He is a recognized scholar and served on numerous international policy and advisory boards related to international development, regional and language studies, and higher education internationalization. Hudzik was Vice President for Global Engagement and Strategic Projects at Michigan State University, before serving as acting University Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs.

Jennifer Humphries is Vice-President, Membership, Public Policy and Communications at CBIE, Canada's international education organization. She is responsible for membership relations, communications, research, advocacy, conferences and scholarship programs. Humphries serves on the board of the Association for Studies in International Education and represents CBIE in the Network of International Education Associations. She has delivered presentations at conferences across Canada and abroad. She holds a Master's degree in English from the University of Ottawa.

Fiona Hunter is Research Associate at the Centre for Higher Education Internationalization, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore (Milan, Italy). She also works independently as a consultant, trainer and researcher in higher education specializing in strategic change and internationalization.

She is Co-Editor of the Journal of Studies for International Education (JSIE) and Chair of the Board of Directors at Educational Credential Evaluators (ECE) Inc. She holds a DBA in Higher Education Management from Bath University (UK).

Lisa Ijiri is Associate Provost for Academic Program and Resource Planning at Lesley University where she leads initiatives including global engagement, accreditation, grants, and academic planning. As a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Tokyo, she studied phonological awareness in Japanese kindergartners. She established a program for international students with learning disabilities at Curry College and the Global Education Center at Lesley University. She holds MA and PhD degrees from Johns Hopkins and Northwestern University.

Keiko Ikeda holds a PhD from University of Hawaii, and she is currently Associate Professor at Division of International Affairs and Vice-Director, Center for International Education at Kansai University, Japan. She promotes in-bound student mobility, and several globalization initiatives at KU, including development of KUGF (Kansai University Global Frontier) curriculum (English-taught program for undergraduate international/local students) and overseas program for KU's satellite campuses in Thailand, Taiwan, China (Shanghai) and Belgium.

Paul W. Jagodzinski earned the BS (Chemistry) from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and the PhD (Physical Chemistry) from Texas A&M University. He held faculty and administrative appointments at Eastern Michigan University, West Virginia University and Colorado School of Mines. Currently as Dean of the College of Engineering, Forestry & Natural Sciences at Northern Arizona University, Jagodzinski is recognized for his success in increasing opportunities for traditionally under-represented groups in the sciences and engineering.

Ji-Yeung Jang is Associate Director of the Office of Vice Provost for Global Affairs & International Studies. She assists with strategic planning, assessment and evaluation, and strategic partnership management. Previously, Jang chaired the internationalization metrics subcommittee and conducted an evaluation of Title VI programs at the University of Minnesota, served as Research & Scholarship Network Leader at NAFSA, she received her PhD in Comparative and International Development Education from the University of Minnesota.

Martha Johnson is Assistant Dean for Learning Abroad at the University of Minnesota and oversees one of the largest education abroad offices in the US, sending over 3500 students abroad annually. She has worked in international education since 1991 for organizations and institutions in the US, Ireland, and the United Kingdom. Her experience includes on-site program management, program development and marketing, management of a large university education abroad office, and teaching of short-term programs.

Victoria Jones is Associate Provost for Global Engagement and Associate Professor of Marketing at Seattle University. For the past thirteen years, Dr. Jones has been building dynamic international programs for growing universities in Brazil and the US. Her degrees were earned from Cornell University, the University of Pennsylvania Annenberg School, and the University of Southern California. She teaches and researches in the areas of international marketing and management. She is a frequent lecturer and trainer.

Elsbeth Jones is Emerita Professor of the Internationalization of Higher Education, Leeds Beckett University, UK. She is Honorary Visiting Fellow, Centre for Higher Education Internationalization, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Milan. Her specialisms include strategic leadership for internationalization, curriculum internationalization, and employability outcomes and intercultural competence development through internationalization. She has published widely, including Internationalization and the Student Voice (Routledge, 2010). Elsbeth is Series Editor for the new Routledge book series, Internationalization in Higher Education.

Jeet Joshee is Associate Vice President for International Education and Global Engagement and Dean of the College of Continuing and Professional Education at California State University, Long Beach. As Associate Vice President, Dr. Joshee is the Senior International Officer at CSULB.

As SIO, he advises the President and Provost on international education and advances CSULB's global mission, strategic plans, international engagement and partnerships. He works closely with faculty and administration to internationalize the campus.

Mohamed Abdel-Kader serves as the Deputy Assistant Secretary for International and Foreign Language Education and is responsible for administering the domestic programs authorized under Title VI of the Higher Education Act and the overseas programs under the Fulbright-Hays Act. Mohamed served as the Director of Development for the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University and also managed the university's advancement strategy in the Middle East region. He holds degrees from Clemson University, Vanderbilt University, and Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business.

Hilary E. Kahn is the Executive Director of the Center for the Study of Global Change and Assistant Dean of the School of Global and International Studies at Indiana University Bloomington. She is also faculty in International Studies and Anthropology and Director of the PhD Minor in Global Studies. She has expertise in global teaching and learning, curriculum internationalization, visual ethnography, human rights, Latin America and the Caribbean, and interdisciplinary approaches to critical global studies.

Theresa Kaiser is Director of Global Opportunities at American University's Washington College of Law where she serves as the touchstone for JD students regarding the internationalization of their legal education, facilitates the global mindset of WCL faculty and extends the international reach and reputation of the institution. Active in NAFSA, AALS and AIEA, Kaiser has an M.Ed. from Harvard University, a JD from Emory University, and a BA and BSJ. from the University of Kansas.

Jen (Nielsen) Kane is Associate Director (Education) for the University of Queensland, based in Washington, DC. In her role, Jen is responsible for implementing UQ's strategic initiatives in the USA; developing and managing key partnerships and relationships; and increasing the number of research collaborations with strategic partners. Jen previously served as Education Manager at the Embassy of Australia in Washington, DC. She holds a bachelor's degree in English Writing from DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana.

Avichal Kapur is Chief Executive Officer & Director (Quality Assurance) at the Meghe Group of Institutions [MGI], Nagpur, Maharashtra, India. He is active in both AIEA and NAFSA and is member of the Global Engineering Deans Council (GEDC). Dr. Kapur previously was the Director (Quality & Systems) at the Manipal International University, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. He has worked in premier academic and research organizations of government of India. He holds a PhD in Electronics Engineering.

Susan Kassab is the Director of University Recruitment and Advising Services at ELS Educational Services and has worked for 28 years in Enrollment Management as a Counselor and Director. She has created and implemented SIEM plans and continues to assist universities in creating and implementing strategic international initiatives. Susan is Past Chair of the NAFSA IEM Task Force and a member of other Higher Education organizations. Kassab holds an MA in Education from Widener University.

Miriam A. Kazanjian is an independent consultant and leading international education and government relations specialist in Washington, DC. She has been instrumental in organizing and guiding the Coalition for International Education, focusing on U.S. Department of Education international education programs and policies. She has consulted extensively for more than two decades on international education and policy for numerous national associations, U.S. foundations, and U.S. and foreign higher education institutions.

Timothy Kell is an Evaluator and Team Manager at Educational Credential Evaluators. Timothy is actively involved in the training and mentoring of new staff members, and has lead workshops and sessions on a wide range of international admissions topics at conferences regionally, nationally, and internationally. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology, Criminology and Law Studies from Marquette University.

Earl Kellogg is Senior Vice President and Chief International Officer at Strategic Consulting: The Wyly/Kellogg International Group. He was Associate Provost for International Affairs at the University of Illinois, and previously Executive Director of the Consortium for International Development, Past AIEA President, Board Chair of the Midwest University Consortium for International Affairs, founding Director of the US-Africa Higher Education Initiative, and Chief Operating Officer of Winrock International, a global sustainability foundation. Earl earned his PhD in Agricultural Economics.

Nicola Kernaghan is Associate Director for Program Development in the International Center at the University of Florida (UF). She serves on the UF Internationalization Task Force and coordinates evaluation efforts for the International Center. Nicola has more than 10 years' experience working with faculty and students to integrate international opportunities into their research, teaching and outreach activities. She holds a PhD in science education from UF and focuses on internationalization of the STEM disciplines.

James Ketterer is Director of International Academic Initiatives and Senior Fellow, Institute of International Liberal Education at Bard College, where he teaches political studies. Ketterer served as Egypt Country Director for AMIDEAST and was Vice Chancellor and Deputy Provost for the SUNY system, and director of the Center for International Development. In government, he worked at the New York Commission on Higher Education, the National Security Council and the New York State Senate.

Eunice K. Kim currently serves as Special Adviser to the President of International Affairs at Ewha Womans University and oversees the university's strategic international partnerships with universities and institutions. She is the former Vice President of International Affairs at Ewha and she led the university on several significant international research initiatives with universities and corporations worldwide. She also serves as a professor at Ewha Law School and earned her JD from Yale Law School.

Kevin Kinser is Chair of the Department of Educational Administration and Policy Studies at the University at Albany, State University of New York, as well as a Senior Fellow for Internationalization at NAFSA: Association of International Educators. He is a graduate of Columbia University's Teachers College (New York). Kinser studies non-traditional and alternative higher education, particularly the public policies and organizational structures related to private for-profit institutions and international cross-border higher education.

Sabine C. Klahr is Deputy Chief Global Officer at the University of Utah and Immediate Past President of AIEA. She has almost 20 years of experience in IHE. Her doctoral research focused on internationalizing engineering education. She has served on many committees for NAFSA, AIEA, and DAAD, and has published in peer reviewed journals and books. Global learning has been part of her life since arriving in the U.S. as an exchange student from Germany.

Sonja Knutson is the Director of the International Centre and Special Advisor to the President on International Affairs at Memorial University of Newfoundland. She holds an M. Ed. in post-secondary education (Memorial University) and B.Ed. in Teaching English as a Second Language (Concordia University). She leads the internationalization office at Memorial and is active in both CBIE and NAFSA.

Mark Kopenski is the Vice President for Enrollment Management at Drew University in NJ. He has spent twenty seven years in enrollment management and his work has taken him to 95 different nations throughout the world and to all 50 US states. He has consulted at a variety of public, private, and for-profit higher education institutions and provided advising and international market research to capital investment firms with portfolio holdings or interest in higher education.

Kees Kouwenaar is Senior Advisor International Strategy at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam (Netherlands). He is active in AIEA, NAGAP and EAIE. He initiated and coordinates the MASTERMIND Europe project. His was previously Strategic Manager of the VU internationalization program and director of the VU Centre for International Cooperation. Kees has been active in international education since 1982 and has played significant roles in the Europe-US discussions on credential evaluation and in the Lisbon Convention (1997).

Catherine Koverola is Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Social Sciences at Lesley University. Dr. Koverola has forged numerous partnerships that have resulted in graduate programs for students from developing countries and global graduate student internships. She is an internationally recognized scholar in the area of interpersonal victimization in cross-cultural contexts and author of the blog the Boldness of Love. <http://www.lesley.edu/blog/boldness-of-love/>. She holds a PhD from the Fuller Theological Seminary School of Psychology.

Katharine Krebs is Vice Provost for International Affairs at Binghamton University. With a BA in Latin American Studies from the University of New Mexico and MA and PhD degrees in Spanish from Tulane University, she previously held international education positions at the University at Albany and the University of Pennsylvania. Krebs participated in the Fulbright Administrator's Program to Korea and is an Associate Editor of Frontiers, The Interdisciplinary Journal of Study Abroad.

Jane Kucko is Director for the Center for International Studies and Associate Dean of University Programs. As co-author of TCU's Comprehensive Internationalization plan, Discovering Global Citizenship, Kucko has implemented the TCU Global Academy—an interdisciplinary approach to study abroad through investigating world issues. Under Kucko's co-leadership, TCU completed the ACE Comprehensive Internationalization Lab and was recently recognized for its conformity with the Forum's Standards of Good Practice. Kucko holds a PhD from Texas Woman's University.

Joanna Kukielka-Blaser is the Program Director, International Relations, in the Office of International Affairs at The Ohio State University. She is also the Campus Representative for the Fulbright Scholar program and directs the U.S. Department of Education Fulbright-Hays program. Kukielka-Blaser was a Soros Fellow in Poland. She has worked through the U.S. Departments of Education and State in Poland, Ukraine, and South Africa. She holds an MA degree in Russian Language and Literature from OSU.

Katja Kurz is University Relations Officer at Cultural Vistas. Kurz focuses on access to emerging leadership and professional development programs for underrepresented students. She has previously held research positions at Columbia University in NY and Johannes Gutenberg University in Mainz, Germany. Kurz has published on experiential education abroad, intercultural engagement, and social innovation. She holds a doctorate in English from the Johannes Gutenberg University of Mainz and an MA from Clark University in Worcester, MA.

C.K. Kwai has extensive experience in all areas of International Education: Education Abroad, International Enrollment Management, International Student and Scholar Services, and Intensive English Programs. C.K.'s research interest is in the areas of International Education and has a PhD in Higher Educational. He is also an adjunct professor at Vietnamese German University, Vietnam. He had taught and presented at NAFSA National and regional Conferences, NAFSA Summer Institute, and institutions around the world.

Awewura Kwara is an associate professor of medicine, Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University. He completed Internal Medicine Residency at Cook County Hospital and Infectious Disease Fellowship at Tulane University Health Sciences Center. His research focuses on the optimal management of HIV and TB co-infection. He has broad expertise in the area Global Health, Infectious Diseases and HIV and tuberculosis co-infection research. He holds a MbChB (equivalent to a MD) from the University of Ghana.

Randy Kyes is a Research Professor in the Department of Psychology and Adjunct Research Professor in the Depts. of Global Health and Anthropology at the University of Washington. He also is Director of the Center for Global Field Study, and Core Scientist and Head of the Division of Global Programs at the Washington National Primate Research Center. Dr. Kyes completed his PhD from the University of Georgia in 1989.

Markus Laitinen is Vice-President of the European Association for International Education (EAIE). He is currently the Head of International Affairs (SIO) at the University of Helsinki, Finland and has more than twenty years of experience in various roles related to higher education internationalization. Markus Laitinen holds a Master's degree in Social Sciences (Political Science) from the University of Helsinki. He is an advocate of "embedded internationalization" both institutionally and beyond.

Lisa Lancia is Director of International Initiatives with the Office of the Provost at Fordham University. She previously held leadership positions as Director of International Strategic Initiatives, the Pace London Law Program and the Office of Admissions at Pace University School of Law. Lancia has experience overseas through the U.N. in Peacekeeping Operations in Croatia and Haiti, and with U.N. HQ in Switzerland. She holds a JD from Washington College of Law at American University.

Hilary Landorf is an Associate Professor in the College of Education at Florida International University. She also serves as the Director of FIU's Office of Global Learning Initiatives, and leads FIU's university-wide curriculum and co-curriculum internationalization initiative. Among her recent publications is a case study on FIU, "in M. Green (Ed.) Improving and Assessing Global Learning. She holds a BA from Stanford University and a PhD in International Education from New York University.

Jason E. Lane is the Vice Provost and Senior Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs at the State University New York, the largest comprehensive system of higher education in the United States. He is responsible for overseeing the system's academic portfolio, including leading the Office of Global Affairs and SUNY's outposts in China, Mexico, Russia, South Korea, and Turkey. Lane is an associate professor of educational administration and policy at the University at Albany, SUNY.

Jennie Lang is Vice-President Advancement, UNSW Australia and CEO UNSW Foundation. In 2013 Jennie received the national IEAA Award for Distinguished Contribution to International Education. Jennie has a Bachelor of Education degree (awarded with Distinction), a Bachelor of Arts, and a Master of Education Research degree all from the University of Newcastle, Australia. She served as an elected international representative to the AIEA Executive Committee for three years from February 2012 to February 2015.

Margaret Larley is an associate professor of medicine, dermatology and infectious diseases at the University of Ghana Medical School, consultant physician and immediate past head of the infectious diseases unit of Korle Bu Teaching Hospital. She has worked in the field of HIV in Ghana. Her areas of research include co-infections, treatment outcomes, pharmacokinetics, drug resistance and dermatological manifestations of HIV infection and antiretroviral therapy.

Gil Lutz is Professor of Geography and Associate Vice Chancellor, International Affairs, IUPUI, appointed 2012. Previously he served as Portland State University's Vice Provost for International Affairs, where he was a faculty member for 28 years. His research on comparative regional development policy includes affiliation with Tokyo University (Japan) and University of Florence (Italy). Recent publications include: assessing international learning (US); educational reform (Vietnam); landscape history (Italy/US); and controversial issues in politics and society (Japan). He is President Elect of AIEA.

Karen M. Lauridsen works at Aarhus University, Centre for Teaching and Learning (Denmark). She focuses on issues related to teaching and learning through the medium of English in the multilingual and multicultural learning space and to language policy in both her research and in-service training and professional development programs. Karen is the coordinator of the Erasmus Academic Network IntlUni – The Challenges of the Multilingual and Multicultural Learning Space in the International University (2012-15).

Brandon Lee is CEO and co-founder of Terra Dotta. His main interest lies in shaping the usability and accessibility of the company's software. His primary responsibility is the development of Terra Dotta Software for study abroad, risk management, international student and scholar services, and English as a second language. He is involved in the development of software to support information systems that can be used to inform students, faculty, and staff.

Nina Lemmens studied art history and worked as a freelance journalist during university. After her PhD, she worked as personal assistant for a MP in the German Parliament. Nina joined the DAAD in 1997 and acted as Director of the DAAD London office, Director for the Asia-Pacific Department and Director for Internationalization and Communication in DAAD in Bonn. Since January 1st 2014, Nina Lemmens is the Director of DAAD's North America office in New York.

Fernando León García has been President of CETYS University since 2010. Prior to that, he served as Chancellor of City University of Seattle's International Division, covering programs, campuses, and sites across the Americas, Europe and Asia. Before joining City University, he served as Chief Academic Officer of Apollo International/University of Phoenix International. From 1974 to 2000 Dr. León-García served in diverse capacities at CETYS. Dr. León-García is current Vice President and Past President of CONAHEC.

Mitch Leventhal is Professor of Professional Practice and Entrepreneurship at SUNY Albany and is also the 'Academic Entrepreneur in Residence' for Shorelight Education. He has presented at various conferences including AIEA, EAIE, and NAFSA. He was Vice Provost for Global Affairs of the SUNY system and was co-founder of AIRC. He also helped found UCosmic. He received his doctorate from the University of Chicago on entrepreneurship and nation building.

Bailian Li is the Vice Provost for International Affairs at North Carolina State University, who leads the University's mission of being locally responsive while globally engaged for research, education, and economic development. Under his leadership NC State has expanded international programs at home and abroad, built strong network of global partnerships, and made a significant progress towards comprehensive internationalization of the university in teaching, research and service mission as a world class land-grant institution.

Weibin Li is Director of the International Office at Sichuan University and a faculty member in the National Key Lab of Polymer Materials Engineering. Since assuming his position in 2013, Li has lead his team in internationalizing SCU further, as well as entering into global collaborations with leading institutes and Fortune 500 companies. Li conducted postdoctoral research at Caltech with Nobel Laureate Robert Grubbs and holds a doctorate in organometallic chemistry from Brown University.

Sonny Lim is Special Assistant for International Collaborations at Rice University. He returned to the United States after twenty years living and working overseas, most recently in Singapore serving in directorship roles for international higher education and research. He has moderated and presented sessions at EAIE, AIEA and APAIE conferences, and contributed a note to The Sage Handbook of International Higher Education. He holds a JD from UCLA.

Hilary L. Link has served as Dean of Temple University's Rome campus since December 2013. Link previously spent 12 years at Barnard College, as Vice Provost, Dean for International Programs, Dean of Study Abroad, and First-Year Class Dean; and 2 years at NYU. Link holds a BA from Stanford University and an MA and PhD in Italian Language and Literature from Yale. She has taught Italian language and literature at Barnard, Columbia, NYU and Yale. She was a 2010-2011 AIEA Neal Presidential Fellow.

Masakazu Iino graduated from the Department of Political Science at the School of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University, and worked for the Bank of Japan. He completed the master's and doctoral courses at the University of Pennsylvania and received his PhD. He taught at California State University at Los Angeles as an assistant professor, Obirin University as an associate professor, as well as at the School of Political Science and Economics in Waseda.

LaShandra Little is the Director of University Relations at NSHSS. LaShandra received a BA in Political Science from Albany State University and her M. Ed in Higher Education and Student Affairs from University of South Carolina. LaShandra has over 14 years of experience working in higher education and with young adult leaders. Previously, she worked at Golden Key International Honour Society as an Associate Director and has student affairs experience from Kennesaw State University.

Jun Liu is Associate Provost for International Initiatives and Professor of Applied Linguistics at Georgia State University. He is 2012-13 AIEA Presidential Fellow and serves on the AIEA Strategic Task Force, and is currently on the AIEA board. He is Past President of TESOL International Association a member of the International Society of Chinese Language Teaching and Board of Trustees of The International Research Foundation for English Language Education. He has published extensively and has given speeches in more than 20 countries.

James Lucas is Assistant Dean for Global Education and Curriculum in the Michigan State University Undergraduate Education Office. In this capacity, he works on curriculum and faculty development related to the institution's learning goals and global competencies, including developing learning outcomes, constructing assessments, and integrating global pedagogies. Dr. Lucas also coordinates MSU's first-year seminar abroad program; liaises between academic, student, and international affairs offices; and works with the general education directors on curriculum and assessment.

Linda C. Lucas is Provost of University of Alabama Birmingham after being dean of the School of Engineering for over a decade. With bachelor degrees in mathematics and chemistry from UA and in engineering from UAB and master's degrees in engineering, mathematics and education plus a doctorate in biomedical engineering from UAB, her research focuses on development of biomaterials for orthopedic and dental implants. She holds appointments in the Materials Science, Engineering and Dentistry.

Elizabeth Lyons has recently returned to the National Science Foundation's International unit, where her last assignment was overseeing NSF's flagship international program, the PIRE program. She spent the last 3.5 years on loan to the Department of State as a Senior Advisor in the Office of the Science and Technology Adviser to the Secretary, working to strengthen international science, technology, and innovation engagement by U.S. universities. She holds degrees from Harvard (AB), Yale (MFS), and Duke (PhD).

Jennifer Manise is the Executive Director of the Longview Foundation for World Affairs and International Understanding. Since it was founded in 1966, the Longview Foundation has been seeking to build a more peaceful, just, and sustainable world by equipping youth with a global perspective and understanding of political, social, and environmental issues worldwide. Prior to joining the Longview Foundation, Ms. Manise worked at the Council of Chief State School Officers.

Cornelia Marin holds a dual law degree of Paris I - Panthéon-Sorbonne in France and University of Cologne, Germany. In 2012, she has been appointed as Director "International" of the Sorbonne Universités (Paris) cluster. Her missions concern the implementation of the international strategy of Sorbonne Universités and in particular developing strategic partnerships with geographic priority regions, creating dedicated funded programs, mutualizing of services amongst members, organizing National and International conferences.

Adrienne L. Martin is interim Vice Provost-Global Affairs at the University of California, Davis, where she provides leadership to coordinate, strengthen and promote the internationalization of the university and increase its global impact. She received the PhD in Romance Languages and Literatures from Harvard University and is professor in the Department of Spanish & Portuguese. She is the author of eight books and over seventy articles, critical notes and reviews in early modern Spanish literature.

Iain Martin is Vice-President and Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic) at UNSW Australia. Professor Martin graduated from the University of Leeds. In 2000, he was appointed Professor of Surgery at the University of Auckland and served in a various roles in the Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences, before being appointed as DVC(Strategic Engagement) in 2011. Professor Martin has also been involved with medical education, the Australian Medical Council and Medical Deans Australia & New Zealand.

Patricia Maruschak is the International Agreements Coordinator for the University of Manitoba. She has worked extensively as a project manager with government departments, international finance and education institutions and non-governmental organizations in Eastern Europe, Central Asia and the Caucasus, as well as Canada. Patricia holds a Bachelor of Education from the University of Manitoba and a Master of Public Administration from Carleton University.

Cheryl Matherly is Vice Provost for Global Education at The University of Tulsa, where she has responsibility for the strategic leadership for comprehensive internationalization. Dr. Matherly directs the NanoJapan program, funded by the National Science Foundation to expand international research opportunities for students in STEM fields. She is recipient of two Fulbright grants for international education administrators (Germany and Japan.) She has an EdD in Education Leadership and Culture Studies from the University of Houston.

Quinton McArthur is the Associate Director of Admissions and Director of Diversity and International Recruitment at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). He is active in OACAC and AIEA and presents on issues pertaining to international students, particularly within the Middle East and the Caribbean. Quinton holds a Master's degree in Education Policy and Higher Education from the University of Maryland, College Park and a Bachelor's degree from Morehouse College.

Michael McCarry has led the Alliance for International Educational and Cultural Exchange as its Executive Director since October 1994. Prior to joining the Alliance, he spent 18 years with the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) as a Foreign Service Officer.

Patti McGill Peterson is Presidential Advisor for Global Initiatives at the American Council on Education. Previously, she was executive director of the Council for International Exchange of Scholars and vice president of the Institute of International Education. She is president emerita of Wells College and St. Lawrence University. Dr. Peterson was founding chair of the US-Canada Commission for Educational Exchange. Her board memberships include Alliance for International Exchange, CONAHEC and the National Research University, HSE, Russia.

Linda McKinnish Bridges has experience is grounded in classroom, administrative leadership, and program development experience in international higher education. As Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Wake Forest University, she understands the needs of faculty and university governance. Most recently, she served as Associate Dean of International Admissions for Wake Forest and Director of Educational Programs in China, with responsibilities in international recruiting, campus academic and student support programming, and international program development.

Peter McPherson is President of The Association of Public and Land-grant Universities. He has also served as Chair of the Board of Directors of Dow Jones and Company, co-founder of the Partnership to Cut Hunger and Poverty in Africa, President for eleven years of Michigan State, Deputy Secretary of the US Treasury, and Administrator of USAID. He earned a BA from Michigan State, an MBA from Western Michigan University, and a JD from American University.

Meredith McQuaid is the Associate Vice President and Dean of International Programs for the University of Minnesota system. In this role, she promotes the global dimensions of teaching, research, and engagement across all colleges and campuses of the University. McQuaid is a past president of NAFSA. McQuaid earned her BA degree in Linguistics from the University of Minnesota and her JD degree from the University of Minnesota Law School.

Caryn McTighe Musil is Senior Scholar and Director of Civic Learning and Democracy Initiatives at AAC&U and formerly served as the Senior Vice President of the Office of Diversity, Equity, and Global Initiatives. She was the project director for the Global Learning Rubric and has worked through AAC&U projects to identify the intersections of global learning with diversity and civic learning. She authored A Crucible Moment: Civic Learning and Democracy's Future released at the White House in 2012 and works with the Council of Europe through the International Consortium for Higher Education, Civic Responsibility, and Democracy to spur comparative ways across national borders to promote democratic cultures and human rights.

Christopher Medalis is Regional Director (REAC) for Northern & Central Europe and Turkey for EducationUSA. Previously Chris served as Director of Global Scholarship Programs at IIE in New York and has held positions in scholarship program design and management, ESL/EFL, teacher training, Fulbright Program administration, and directed IIE's Europe Office from 1998-2007. He holds a PhD from Columbia University in History and Comparative and International Education, and his academic research focuses on educational diplomacy.

Raj Mehta is a Professor of Marketing at the Lindner College of Business and Vice Provost for International Affairs at the University of Cincinnati. He works closely with the university administration in pursuing the university's goals, particularly those that are related to strategic partnerships and entrepreneurship. Professor Mehta's teaching interests are in the area of international business and specifically address the issues related to starting for profit social enterprises in a global economy.

Gil Merckx is the Director of the Duke Center for International Studies and a former Vice Provost for International Affairs at Duke. He is Treasurer of AIEA and a past-President of AIEA. He is co-Chairman of the Council of Title VI NRC Directors, and serves on the boards of the Scholars at Risk Network and Venice International University.

He has served as Chairman of the Group of Advisors of the National Security Education Program.

Angela Miller serves as the Assistant Director for Education Abroad at Northern Arizona University's Center for International Education and Coordinator of Faculty-led Study Abroad programs. Her extensive work in Global Learning at NAU includes her doctoral research in Educational Leadership, entitled: Global Learning for All: One Approach to Infusing Global Learning in the Undergraduate Curriculum, centered on global learning and campus internationalization.

James A. Millward is a professor of history at Georgetown University, where he teaches world, Central Asian, and Chinese history. His research interests involve China and Central Eurasia. He is the author most recently of The Silk Road: A Very Short Introduction and also writes on contemporary events in Xinjiang. He has served on the board of the Association for Asian Studies and on the board and as president of the Central Eurasian Studies Society.

Marilyn Sanders Mobley is Vice President for Inclusion, Diversity and Equal Opportunity and Professor of English at Case Western Reserve University, where her strategic diversity leadership has received national recognition. Dr. Mobley is a published author, Toni Morrison scholar, founder of an African American Studies program, and a former provost whose research and teaching in literary studies, cultural studies and higher education have focused on race, gender, class, social justice, diversity and cross-cultural perspectives.

Peter Moran has been director of the Office of International Programs and Exchanges at the University of Washington since 2009. Prior to that he lived and worked in Kathmandu, Nepal, for over a decade, and was executive director of the Fulbright Commission there from 2005-2009. Peter received his PhD in cultural anthropology from the University of Washington in 1998, and his study of cross-cultural encounters in Nepal, Buddhism Observed, was published by Routledge Curzon in 2004.

Betsy Morgan received her PhD from the University at Buffalo after teaching English in Japan. She is now Coordinator of International Initiatives, College of Arts and Sciences at Eastern Michigan University, where she has held administrative positions while a faculty member in TESOL for the past 25 years. She is primarily responsible for developing and implementing international partnerships. She has been invited to Peru, Honduras, and Namibia to provide professional development workshops for teachers.

Richard (Rick) Nader is Vice Provost of International Affairs at the University of North Texas. Nader is actively promoting the nexus of interests and complementarities inherent in campus support for global research and education. He previously served as a Program Director at NSF's Office of International Science and Engineering, and Director of the Institute for Pacific Asia at Texas A&M. He holds a doctorate in Higher Education from Texas A&M University.

Leigh Neys is Director of International Programs and Services at the University of Minnesota Duluth (UMD). She provides leadership and expertise in the development and realization of a vision for international education. Neys holds a doctorate in organization leadership, policy and development from the University of Minnesota.

Laura Niesen de Abruna is Provost/Vice President for Academic Affairs at Sacred Heart University, interested in global awareness, digital/service learning, outcomes assessment, and general education. Laura graduated from Smith, majoring in English, minoring in French. She has an MA and PhD in English from Chapel Hill and M. S. Ed. in higher education management from Penn. She held faculty/administrative positions at Roger Williams and Ithaca, had Fulbrights in Belgium and Luxembourg, ACLS, NEH and ACE fellowships.

Jesse Njoka is an associate professor in Range Management at the Department of Land Resource Management and Agricultural Technology at the University of Nairobi. He has extensive experience working in Kenya, Uganda, Eritrea, Sudan, Ethiopia, Somalia, Tanzania, Ghana, and Burkina Faso. Jesse was a Fulbright Scholar visiting Professor at Colorado State University and holds a PhD from the University of California at Berkeley.

Gayle Nunley has served as Associate Provost and SIO of the University of Vermont since 2011, coinciding with the University's decision to embark on an ambitious expansion of international engagement. Since January 2014 she has additionally served as Director of the UVM Global Gateway Program, a key component of the campus internationalization strategy. She holds a PhD from Princeton University and has been a faculty member at the University of Vermont since 1988.

Daniel Obst is Deputy Vice President of International Partnerships at the Institute of International Education (IIE) in New York. Mr. Obst oversees all the activities of IIE's network of 1,300 member institutions, IIE's publications and higher education services, the IIE Center for International Partnerships, and IIE's strategic communications. In 2013, Mr. Obst was appointed to serve on the U.S. National Commission to UNESCO.

Anthony C. Ogden is executive director of Education Abroad and Exchanges and an adjunct assistant professor in Educational Policy and Evaluation Studies at the University of Kentucky. Dr. Ogden earned his bachelor's degree from Berea College, master's degree in International and Intercultural Management at the SIT Graduate Institute, and his PhD at The Pennsylvania State University in Educational Theory and Policy with a dual title in Comparative and International Education.

Christa Olson is Vice Provost International Programs at Drake University. She currently serves on the AIEA Board and as Chair of the Strategic Issues Task Force. She previously held the position of Associate Director for International Initiatives at the American Council on Education. Olson's publications include: A Canadian Lens on Facilitating Factors for North American Partnerships, and diverse ACE manuscripts on campus internationalization. She holds a doctorate in French from Stanford University.

Hiroshi Ota is Professor at the Center for Global Education and Director of the Global Education Program at Hitotsubashi University, Tokyo. He served as Research Advisor to the Project Team for Supporting University Internationalization at the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (2005-10). His research focuses on comparative HE policies and practices in internationalization and student mobility. He is a frequent presenter at AIEA, EAIE, NAFSA on internationalization of higher education in Asian countries.

Anne Pakir is the Director of International Relations at NUS, Singapore. A Fulbright scholar at UC Berkeley and later at Cornell, Dr. Pakir is a recipient of a Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS) award and a Chevalier dans l'Ordre des Palmes academiques award. She serves on several editorial boards, including the Journal of Studies in International Education. She holds a PhD in Linguistics.

Suzanne Panferov is the Director of the Center for English as a Second Language (CESL) at the University of Arizona. Recent CESL-UA collaborations include customized English courses, program evaluation, and faculty training. Panferov also serves on the Second Language Acquisition and Teaching (SLAT) faculty with research specializations in language program administration, teacher training, and pedagogy. She recently served as President of TESOL International Association and currently is a member of the UCIEP Steering Committee.

Beth Pann is Vice President of the National Society of High School Scholars. She has extensive experience in business development and communications, strategic planning, and donor cultivation and stewardship. Her 20 years in the nonprofit sector have focused on youth, education, and the arts with Usher's New Look Foundation, Woodruff Arts Center, The Bridge, and the Charles G. Koch Foundation. Beth received a BA degree from Denison University, and serves on the Boards of Development in Gardening and No Bully.

Minkyung Park is Acting Assistant Vice President for International Campus Operations at George Mason University. She led the international campus planning efforts for Mason's international campus in South Korea and is responsible for coordinating operations between two campuses. Park previously presented on international campus issues in AIEA and her co-authored article is recently published in Global Partners in Education Journal. She has published many scholarly articles and manuscripts nationally and internationally.

Chris Payne has been with King's College London since 2008. As the Head of the USA Office, he acts as the university's representative in North America, leading the development and implementation of outreach, partnerships and student recruitment strategies. Chris has over 10 years of experience in the field. Prior to King's, he worked at universities in the US and China. He has an undergraduate degree in Business Management and a Master's in Strategic Communication Management.

Jeffrey Peck is Dean of the Weissman School of Arts and Sciences at Baruch College (CUNY) where he also serves as Vice Provost for Global Strategies. Peck is active in AIEA and represents CUNY in the WC2 (Global Cities/Global Universities) Network. He held positions at Humboldt University, Free University of Berlin, Georgetown University, York University (Toronto), and University of Montreal. Peck received his MA from University of Chicago and his doctorate from University of California.

Janis Perkins is the founder "Expanding Horizons for Education Abroad", an organization that responds to the need to expand capacity of and improve access to safe, culturally-immersive, and academically-appropriate programs in under-represented destinations. Her previous appointment was as senior education abroad administrator at the University of Iowa. There she was responsible for program development, administration, policies, and procedures. Perkins has contributions to international education include leadership positions in NAFSA, conference/workshop organization, and professional committees.

Patrice Petro is Professor of English, Film, and Global Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where she also serves as Vice Provost for International Education. She is the author, editor, and co-editor of ten books, most recently, Teaching Film (MLA Options for Teaching Series, 2012) and Beyond Globalization: Making New Worlds in Media, Art, and Social Practices (Rutgers University Press, 2011).

Rebecca Pisano has been the Director of International Programs at the Universidad San Francisco de Quito in Ecuador since 2013, where she is also an adjunct professor in Education and Service-Learning. She oversees all aspects of incoming and outgoing student mobility on two campuses, as well as international agreements. Previously she held various roles in study abroad at Chapman University, UCLA, NYU, and Towson University. Pisano holds a PhD from the University of California, Los Angeles in Comparative/International Studies in Education.

Susan Popko promotes global engagement and provides leadership for international education as Associate Provost for International Programs at Santa Clara University, including international programs and initiatives and supervises the Study Abroad Office. Susan also plays an active role in the international education community through presentations, committees and advisory boards, including serving on the Board of Directors of the Forum on Education Abroad.

Monica Porter is the Assistant Vice Chancellor for Student Success and the Director for the Office of International Affairs at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. Porter is a member of AIEA, IMA, AACRAO, and NAFSA. She previously held faculty and administrative positions at the UM-Dearborn, University of Botswana and Saint Augustine's College. Monica holds a MA and a doctorate in Applied Behavioral Analysis (concentration in Industrial/Organizational Psychology) from Western Michigan University.

Xavier Prats Monné is the Director General, Education and Culture at the European Commission. The policy areas under his responsibility include the modernization of European education, and international relations in the field of education, culture and youth. He holds degrees in Social Anthropology and in Development Economics, as well as a degree in European Affairs from the College of Europe in Belgium, where he graduated first of his Class and served as assistant professor.

Malcolm Press was appointed as the University of Birmingham's Pro-Vice-Chancellor for Research and Knowledge Transfer in 2013, prior to which he was Pro Vice-Chancellor for the College of Life and Environmental Sciences. He is a member of the University's Executive Board and his roles include Chair of the International Board and Strategic Academic Lead for the Americas. Malcolm holds a PhD in Physiological Ecology from the University of Manchester.

Clara Priester is the EducationUSA Regional Director (REAC) for east and southern Africa responsible for developing and training EducationUSA Advisers in 20 countries. She was previously Marketing and Communications Directors at Wits Business School and McDonald's South Africa. Priester is a Women's Private Equity Fund trustee and a member of the International Women's Forum South Africa (IWFSA); and holds a MBA from University of Chicago Booth School of Business and is a Chartered Marketer (SA).

Mike Proctor is Vice President for Global Initiatives at the University of Arizona. He facilitates the implementation of large global research initiatives, student and scholar mobility, and strategic multinational collaborations. Mike has also served as assistant vice president for corporate relations; associate dean for external affairs in Agriculture and Life Sciences; and coordinated the distance education and branch campus programs. A professor of Watershed Management, he earned his JD degree from the University of Arizona.

Ishwar K. Puri is dean of engineering at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. He has extensive experience in setting up and evaluating integrated and collaborative international engineering programs. He obtained his PhD (1987), and MS (1984) degrees in Engineering Science from University of California, San Diego after obtaining a BSc (1982) in Mechanical Engineering from University of Delhi.

Penelope "Nell" J. Pynes is Associate Provost for International Programs at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, leading internationalization efforts and promoting student/faculty exchange. She is also Chair-Elect of NAFSA's International Education Leadership Knowledge Community and serves on the Executive Committee of AIEA. Pynes is a former Fulbright scholar to Heidelberg, Germany.

She earned her master's degree from the University of Alabama and a doctorate in Germanic linguistics from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

Robert Quinn is the founding Executive Director of the Scholars at Risk Network, based at New York University. He currently serves the governing Council of the Magna Charta Observatory and is a fellow with the Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellows Program. He previously served as Executive Director of the Institute of International Education's Scholar Rescue Fund and on the Steering Committee of the Network for Education and Academic Rights. He holds a JD from Fordham.

Rosalind Latiner Raby is Director of California Colleges for International Education (CCIE), a consortium whose membership includes 86 California community colleges. Dr. Raby is also the Education Abroad Knowledge Community chair for community college study abroad programs for NAFSA and is widely published on the topic of Community College International Education. She is a Senior Lecturer at California State University, Northridge in the Educational Leadership & Policy Studies Department of the College of Education.

Joanna Regulska serves as the Vice President for International and Global Affairs at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. She is a professor of women's and gender studies and geography. With over 30 years of international experience in higher education, she has led diverse research, educational projects and partnerships. In 2010–2011 she was selected as an AIEA Presidential Fellow and was the winner of a 2013 Fulbright US–Korea International Education Administrator Award.

Robin Reid is Professor and Director of the Center for Collaborative Conservation at Colorado State University. She has led education, research and outreach projects in the drylands of Africa, Asia and North America. From 1992-2007, she lived/ worked in east Africa, doing research with pastoral peoples. Her team of researchers and pastoralists won the 2012 Sustainability Science Award from the Ecological Society of America. In 2014, Robin won APLU's Michael Malone Award for International Leadership.

Kevin P. Reilly serves as ACE Presidential Advisor for Leadership. Reilly joined ACE in 2014, after nearly a decade as President of the University of Wisconsin System. He is a member of the Higher Education Working Group on Global Issues for the Council on Foreign Relations and sits on the Celtic Studies Steering Committee at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He is also former President of the National Association of System Heads.

Deb S. Reisinger is Lecturer in Romance Studies at Duke University, and Affiliate Faculty in Duke's Global Health Institute and Markets and Management Program. She holds a PhD in French Literature and Cultural Studies from UNC-Chapel Hill and has published numerous articles on cultural studies, CAL, and Languages for Specific Purposes. Reisinger directs the Duke in Montréal summer program and is Director of the new Cultures and Languages Across the Curriculum (CLAC) initiative at Duke.

Bernd Reissert is the President of Berlin School of Economics and Law and serves as Chairman for UAS7 (Seven German Universities of Applied Sciences). Reissert has extensive expertise in the field of German and international labor market- and employment policy and previously held administrative and faculty positions at the University of the German Federal Employment Agency (HdBA) and at Georgetown University. Reissert received his doctorate from the Free University in Berlin.

Gary Rhodes is Director of the Center for Global Education at the University of California, Los Angeles Graduate School of Education and Information Studies. He received his PhD and MS.Ed. in Education and MA in International Relations from USC and BA from UCSB. He has published articles, been cited, and presents widely on issues of university internationalization, study abroad impact and administration, across the U.S. and around the world. He has received Fulbright grants to India and South Africa.

Kim Riordan is Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Chief International Officer at the University of Minnesota Duluth

(UMD). As Chief International Officer she provides strategic leadership and direction for internationalization at UMD. She also holds a faculty position as associate professor in the department of education at UMD. Riordan holds a doctorate in education, specializing in higher education leadership, from St. Mary's University (MN).

Katie Roller is Director of the Office of International Programs at Whittier College. She holds a Doctorate of Education in Educational Leadership from University of California, Los Angeles. She is Vice President of Finance for Lessons from Abroad and member of the Forum on Education Abroad Best Practices, Resources and Programming for Returned Students Working Group. Her research assesses study abroad students' intercultural competence and the effectiveness of an experiential curriculum that emphasizes focused reflection and culturally relevant pedagogy.

Gina Roman is Director of International Cooperation at La Universidad de Panama. La Universidad de Panama maintains a number of partnerships with universities and organizations, including several innovative campuses focusing on food security and ranching, the sciences and educational access across the country. Ms. Roman has a Masters in Economics and Business Development and is primarily responsible for the institution's collaborations and strategic partnerships, focusing on university development, student/faculty exchange and issues related to academic access.

Jerman Rose is Interim Vice Provost, Office of International Programs at Washington State University. He has served in a variety of faculty and administrative roles including Associate Dean of the College of Business and Director of the International Business Institute. In 27 years at WSU, he has established numerous international agreements and programs in Asia, Africa, Europe, South America and the former Soviet Union. He has PhD from University of Kansas in Russian History.

Jon Rubin is the Founder and Director of the SUNY Center for Collaborative Online International Learning (The COIL Center). He directed the COIL Institute for Globally Networked Learning in the Humanities, which engaged 22 U.S. and 25 international universities in developing collaborative, networked classrooms. He was Associate Professor of Film/New Media at Purchase College where he developed a Cross-Cultural Video course in which SUNY students co-produced videos with students in Turkey, Mexico, Belarus, and Germany.

Laura E. Rumbley is Associate Director and Lecturer at the Boston College Center for International Higher Education (CIHE). She is Co-Editor of the Journal of Studies in International Education and Chair of the Publications Committee of the European Association for International Education (EAIE). Laura, who received her PhD from Boston College, served briefly as a US Foreign Service Officer and is also the former deputy director of the Brussels-based Academic Cooperation Association (ACA).

Evan Ryan is the Assistant Secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs where she oversees exchange programs that engage youth, students, educators, artists, athletes, and emerging leaders in more than 160 countries and in the United States. Previously, Ms. Ryan served in the White House as Assistant to the Vice President and Special Assistant to the President for Intergovernmental Affairs and Public Engagement.

Sinéad Ryan was appointed Director of Internationalization at Trinity College Dublin in September 2012. She is responsible for developing and implementing Trinity's Global Relations Strategy, for promoting international engagement and collaboration and for internationalizing the student body. Sinéad previously worked as a member of the Irish diplomatic service. She was Deputy Head of Mission at the Irish Embassy in Madrid, with responsibility for promoting Ireland's economic, political and cultural relations with Spain.

Lavern Samuels is Director of International Education and Partnerships and Special Assistant to the Vice-Chancellor at Durban University of Technology where he has been lecturer, Head of Department, Deputy Dean and Acting Executive Dean of Faculty of Health Sciences. He serves on the Health Professions Council of South Africa and is a Board Member of the International Centre for Non-Violence and Sultan-Charitable and Educational Trust. He is President of the International Education Association of South Africa (IEASA).

Justin Sanders is a Global Recognition Manager at the International Baccalaureate Organization. Prior to joining the IB, he was engaged in leadership development for US community college boards and CEOs. Justin holds an MA in International Education from the George Washington University and a BA from the University of Arizona. He is based in Singapore.

Anna-Malin Sandstrom is Policy Officer at the European Association for International Education (EAIE). She coordinated and contributed to the development of the study the EAIE Barometer. Prior to joining the EAIE she spent a short time working in European affairs in Brussels, Belgium. She holds an MSc degree in Political Science from Uppsala University, Sweden.

Margaret Sass is the Assistant Director of Service-Learning at Purdue University. Dr. Sass has her Juris Doctorate from Western State University School of Law, and her EdD from Boise State University. Dr. Sass assists faculty on incorporating reflective journaling with international service-learning in study abroad programs and in classes on campus. Her research specifically aims at service-learning impact. Dr. Sass also teaches law and communications.

Donna Scarboro is Associate Provost for International Programs and Professorial Lecturer in English and Honors at The George Washington University, and is a past president of AIEA. Dr. Scarboro is responsible for overseeing GW's international centers, study abroad, and international academic exchange partnerships. Dr. Scarboro earned her MA and PhD at Emory University, served as a Fellow with the American Council on Education, and participated in a Fulbright Higher Education exchange program in Japan.

Margit Schatzman is President of Educational Credential Evaluators, Inc. (ECE), located in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, USA. ECE is a non-profit organization that provides academic institutions and other organizations with services in foreign credential evaluation, research and training in international education. She is also President of the Association for International Credential Evaluation Professionals (TAICEP). Areas of special interest include promotion of professionalism in the field of international credential evaluation and credential evaluation principles and methods.

Anne Schiller is Professor of Anthropology at George Mason University. She was founding Vice President of Mason's Global Strategies Office. She was previously Director of International Programs in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at North Carolina State University. In 2010, she was selected for a Fulbright International Education Administrators Award for Korea. Her research concerns identity and social change in Italy and Indonesia and her findings have appeared in books, numerous scholarly articles, and chapters.

Wolfgang Schlör is the Associate Provost for the Diether H. Haenicke Institute for Global Education at Western Michigan University (WMU) in Kalamazoo, Michigan, overseeing a broad range of programs related to international students, including International Admissions and Services, International Student Activities, and the Center for English Language and Culture for International Students. Schlör holds PhD (Dr. Phil.) and MA (Dipl.Pol.) degrees in Political Science from the Freie Universität Berlin.

Ingrid Schmidt is Associate Vice Provost for International Affairs and Director of Study Abroad at North Carolina State University. She has been active in international education for over 20 years, and has held administrative positions at NC State and UNC-Chapel Hill. Schmidt leads NC State's strategic planning and implementation for Generation Study Abroad, and has initiated a variety of grant-funded projects such as 100,000 Strong in the Americas and ACE's At Home in the World.

Sheila Schulte is the Senior Director, International Enrollment Management and International Student and Scholar Services at NAFSA: Association of International Educators. Her position focuses on providing timely resources for international educators working with incoming international students and scholars to the U.S. Sheila has worked in international education since 1995 in positions at the University of Iowa, the University of Idaho, Emory University, and the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Larry J. Shuman is Senior Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Distinguished Service Professor of Industrial Engineering, University of Pittsburgh. His research focuses on improving the engineering educational experience, emphasizing assessment of learning and problem solving abilities, and studying the ethical behavior of engineers and engineering managers. Within the Swanson School of Engineering he led the development of an innovative study abroad program which received the 2005 Heiskell Award from the Institute for International Education.

Barbara A. Simmons is Inaugural Dean and Associate Professor of International Education at William V.S. Tubman University in Liberia. She has established numerous international collaborations resulting in innovative projects and programs. Her review of the Nairobi Forward Looking Strategies for the Advancement of Women was published by the American Bar Association in International Human Rights of Women. She holds a MSSA from Case Western Reserve University and a Juris Doctorate from Temple University.

John Singleton is Director of International Services at Texas Christian University, also serving as Development Chair for NAFSA Region III. Singleton is co-author of Texas Christian University's Comprehensive Internationalization plan, Discovering Global Citizenship and co-chairs the technology component, Virtual Voyage. Singleton presents on issues focusing on culture and technology as well as access and mobility in developing communities/countries. He has a Master's in Education from UGA and a Bachelor's from the Grady School of Journalism.

Sarah E. Spencer began her work in international education in 1993 and is currently Director, Study Abroad, University of St. Thomas, MN. She is co-editor of the first and second editions of NAFSA's The Guide to Successful Short-term Programs Abroad. Sarah is active in the field's professionalization efforts, including workshops and conference sessions and currently serves as vice-chair of the Forum on Education Abroad Council and its Strategic Alliances, Infrastructure and Resources Working Group.

Giancarlo Spinelli is Rector's delegate for international networks at the Politecnico di Milano. He graduated in Nuclear Engineering and published on General Relativity and Continuum Mechanics. Since 1980 he is full professor of Rational Mechanics. Since 1988 he cared the international relations of the Politecnico di Milano. Honorary professor of the Uninorte, Colombia, he received three honorary doctorates from AUST, Beirut, Lebanon, University of Lund, Sweden and Ecole Centrale, Nantes, France.

Krishnaswami Srihari is a SUNY Distinguished Professor and Dean of the Thomas J. Watson School of Engineering and Applied Science at Binghamton University and Director of the Watson Institute for Systems Excellence. He earned his bachelor's degree with honors in production engineering from the University of Madras, India and his master's and doctorate degrees in industrial engineering and operations research from Virginia Tech. Srihari is a recipient of the 2014 Michael P. Malone International Leadership Award.

Peter Stearns is Provost Emeritus and University Professor at George Mason University. He has taught previously at Harvard (where he was educated), the University of Chicago, Rutgers, and Carnegie Mellon. A prolific writer, he has authored or edited over 125 books and founded and edits the Journal of Social History. During his tenure as provost, George Mason more than tripled its level of funded research and expanded its global partnerships, including dual degree programs.

Priscilla Stone is Vice Provost for SIT Study Abroad, a program of World Learning. She joined SIT in March 2013 and is responsible for the operation of some 70 study abroad programs in more than 40 countries worldwide. She has served on a number of international education boards, including the ACB of CIEE, the Forum Council, and the Partnership Council of SIT. She holds a doctorate in anthropology from the University of Arizona.

H. Stephen Straight is professor emeritus of anthropology and linguistics at Binghamton University, State University of New York. He founded Binghamton's award-winning Languages Across the Curriculum (LxC) program in 1991 and served for ten years as Binghamton's first-ever vice provost for international affairs. A former member of AIEA's executive committee, Straight recently served on AIEA's professional development and conference committees, and as president of the Linguistic Association of Canada and the United States.

Fatimah Suleman is Associate Professor of Pharmaceutical Sciences at Kwazulu-Natal University.

Fengshou Sun studied in Shandong University for his BA and PhD Degrees, and received his MA degree from Manchester University in the UK. He served as Deputy Director of the International Office in Shandong University from 2004 to 2013, and worked for the China Scholarship Council for two years, from 2002 to 2003. Since June 2013, he has been Second Secretary in the Education Office of the Chinese Embassy in the US.

Mallik Sundharam is the Director of ELS International Education Pathways, India. Mallik has been instrumental in expanding the ELS footprint in India starting 2010 by establishing Unbiased Counseling offices operated by internationally educated counselors at Chennai and its immediate expansion of branches in Bangalore, Coimbatore and Hyderabad. Mallik joined ELS with more than a decade of diverse and rich education industry and study abroad experience from SJU.

Susan Buck Sutton is Senior Advisor for International Initiatives, Bryn Mawr College, and Emerita Associate Vice President of International Affairs and Chancellor's Professor of Anthropology, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. Sutton is past President of AIEA and active in the American Council of Education, NAFSA, and IIE. She has given numerous presentations on the changing nature of internationalization, institutional partnerships, curriculum internationalization, and international service learning. Sutton has published five books and 60+ articles.

Lee Tablewski is Director of the 100,000 Strong for the Americas Innovation Fund, an initiative of President Obama based at Partners of the Americas in Washington, DC. He previously served as founding Director of Programs at Institute of the Americas, and previously at the Dante B. Fascell North-South Center as Senior Research Associate. He holds BA and MA degrees from Columbia University in the City of New York.

Nicole Tami is the Director for International Student Integration at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UIUC). Her position was created in fall 2013 to foster campus collaboration and increase inclusion and support for international students. As an administrator, trainer, and instructor Nicole strives to help fellow educators, staff, and students understand the social and historical contexts that shape intercultural exchanges. Nicole holds a doctorate in cultural anthropology from UIUC.

Travis Tanner is Senior Vice President & Chief Operating Officer of the 100,000 Strong Foundation. Mr. Tanner previously served as Senior Project Director at The National Bureau of Asian Research (NBR) and Director of NBR's Kenneth B. and Anne H.H. Pyle Center for Northeast Asian Studies. Mr. Tanner graduated from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) and the Hopkins-Nanjing Center with an MA in International Relations.

Baishakhi Taylor is Associate Dean of Trinity College of Arts and Sciences at Duke University and Program Director for Duke Engage Kolkata, India. She received her PhD in Sociology from the University of Kentucky and served as Associate Director for the North Carolina Consortium for South Asian Studies prior to joining Trinity College. She also serves as Research Scholar in the Program in Education at Duke University, focusing on gender in post-colonial India.

Sylvie Thériault is Director-General, Cégep international, supporting Québec public colleges in design and implementation of internationalization strategies. Previously, Thériault was Coordinator, Center for Multicultural Education, Cégep Marie-Victorin, promoting employment integration of immigrants and developing training programs offered by the Cégep in China and Vietnam. Prior to that she was Director of Education at Development and Peace, and Director at Canada World Youth. She holds a M.P.A. from the National School of Public Administration.

Vicki Thomson joined the Group of Eight in January 2015 after more than a decade as Executive Director of the Australian Technology Network (ATN). Ms Thomson's background covers journalism, politics, issues management as well as the higher education sector. She served as Chief of Staff to the South Australian Premier from 1997-2001. She is also a member of the Australia China Council Board and the New Colombo Plan Reference Group.

Susan Thurman holds a doctorate in English from Florida State University, and BA and MA degrees in English from The University of North Texas. Dr. Thurman joined NSHSS in 2002 to develop the scholarship program. She has taught English and Humanities courses at McNeese State University in Lake Charles, Louisiana; at Lamar University, in Beaumont, Texas; and at the Art Institute of Atlanta. Additionally, she serves as Executive Director of the NSHSS Foundation.

Karen (Haggerty) Trémel is a Master's candidate in Intercultural Relations at the joint University of the Pacific/Intercultural Communication Institute program and a Global Leadership Laboratory (GLLab) Associate at the Global Leadership Advancement Center at San Jose State University. She has leadership development experience in non-profit, corporate, and higher education contexts in both the U.S. and Brazil. Her thesis work involves the development of an interactive global leadership development tool that leverages real-life experiences of expert global leaders.

Joseph Tullbane is founder and president of The I-Quad Group, an international education consultancy. Until his retirement last year, he served as Director of International Education at St. Norbert College. His education includes two degrees in Architecture, from Rice University; MA in International Relations from American University; and PhD in Russian Area Studies from Georgetown University. In 2009, he received the Timothy Rutenber Award for outstanding service to AIEA.

Paaige K. Turner is an associate dean and professor in the School of Communications at Webster University. She currently serves as the faculty, program coordinator for the AIEA Senior Adviser Program. In 2013 she received a Fulbright-Nehru International Education Administrators Seminar Award to travel to India and explore cross-culture education and in 2012 the Outstanding New Professional Award from NAFSA: Region IV. She conducts research and consults in the general area of organizational communication.

Katsuichi Uchida is Professor of Law at Waseda University since 1984, and has served as Vice President of Waseda University from 2006 to 2014. He has published many articles and books on Japanese Civil Law, and became a member of the Japan Science Council. He serves as President of the US-Japan Research Institute in Washington, DC. He is also an acknowledged expert in international education and currently serves as President of Asia-Pacific Association for International Education (APAIE).

Alison Van Nyhuis is the Global Literacy Coordinator and Collaborative Online International Learning Coordinator at Fayetteville State University, where she is also Associate Professor of English. Alison earned her MA and PhD in English at the University of Florida. Her teaching and research interests include American studies, Caribbean studies, and postcolonial theory. Her articles have appeared in various journals, and since joining FSU in 2008, she has received awards for teaching, research, and service.

David K. Vassar is senior assistant to the president at Rice University. Since 2007, he has been an advisor to the president of Rice, and in this capacity has worked with university partners in Latin America, Asia, Europe, the Middle East and Africa. A specialist in contemporary Southern Cone literature, Dr. Vassar has also taught courses on modern short fiction, novel, and autobiography, as well as language and culture courses in both Spanish and Portuguese.

Scott Venezia is Dean of the College of Business and Management, and Head of International Initiatives for CETYS University System, Mexico. Scott holds an undergraduate degree in Management, an MBA with a concentration in Finance and a Doctoral Degree in Business Management. He is an American Council on Education Fellow, Class of 2010-11, and a graduate of NAFSA's 'Academy 10' and ACE's Institute for Leading Internationalization.

Kristiaan Versluys holds a PhD in Comparative Literature from Harvard University (1979). He is Professor of American literature and culture at Ghent University (Belgium) and has published widely on urban literature and Jewish-American fiction. In 2008, he became the Director of Education of Ghent University, responsible for general educational policy, quality assurance, counselling services, registration procedures, and curriculum development. An important part of his portfolio is Ghent University's participation in Korea's Incheon Global Campus.

Leonardo A. Villalón is Dean of the International Center, Senior International Officer and Professor of Political Science and African Studies at the University of Florida. His research specialization is in contemporary African politics, focusing on issues of Islam and politics and democratization in the Sahelian countries of Senegal, Mali, and Niger. From 2002-2011 Dr. Villalón served as Director of UF's Center for African Studies. He holds a PhD from the University of Texas at Austin.

Bogdan Voronovskiy is executive director of the Eastern European University Association. He specializes in internationalization of education in CIS countries. At EEUA he oversees the general development strategy and university collaboration projects. As an experienced communicator with strong negotiation, problem resolution, and client needs assessment aptitude, he participates in worldwide HE events as EEUA representative, working towards international cooperation development. He also heads the IUNC Organizing Committee's special EEUA project: the International Universities Networking Conference.

Robert Wagenaar is Co-director of the Tuning Academy and has been a founding leader of the Tuning movement to reform higher education programs in an international context. He is crucially involved in projects across the globe, he is a Bologna Expert for the Netherlands and an expert in the field of credit systems. He is also a member of the Project Steering Group of the US-EU project.

Felix Wang is responsible for planning, coordinating and promoting study abroad programs and opportunities for James Madison University faculty, staff and students as Director of Study Abroad. He earned his BBA and MBA from Campbell University in North Carolina and M.Ed. in College Student Personnel Administration from James Madison University. He serves as a liaison to JMU colleges and departments on international opportunities, partnerships and initiatives, and he presents workshops on diversity and internationalization.

Heather H. Ward is Senior Program Specialist in the Center for Internationalization and Global Engagement at the American Council on Education in Washington, DC. She previously served as Associate Director for Internationalization and Outreach at George Mason University and as Director of International Programs at Mary Baldwin College. Heather holds a Master of International Affairs from Columbia University and a Bachelor of Arts in Latin American Studies and Spanish from Vanderbilt University.

David A. M. Ware is a 1981 graduate of the University of Texas School of Law. He has practiced exclusively in the area of immigration and nationality law since 1982, with a consistent academic focus. Mr. Ware is active in AILA, NAFSA, and NACUA, and is a frequent speaker and author on immigration topics, including recent AILA and ILW publications and BusinessWeek online.

Noriko Watanabe is Education Counselor at the Embassy of Japan in Washington, DC. She has held several positions at the Ministry of Education, including Director, Office for Promoting Foreign Language Education, Elementary and Secondary Education Bureau; Director, Office for Teacher Training Planning, Higher Education Bureau; and Deputy Director, Office for Promoting Strategic Intellectual Property Program, Cabinet Secretariat. She holds a Masters in Intellectual Property Law, University of Tokyo, and a Bachelor in Business, Keio University.

Michael Waxman-Lenz is CEO of International Education Advantage (INTEAD) and an executive with over 15 years' experience of developing, managing and marketing global digital services, an in-depth understanding of global higher education marketing, and adjunct faculty teaching experience. He is co-author of 88 Ways to Recruit International Students (Amazon, 2011), and Building and Managing your International Network (2013).

Heidi West, is the Director of the Drexel University, Office of International Programs. She develops and enhances international partnerships, conceptualizes and initiates cross-cultural programs, and promotes strategies to internationalize the university. She holds an MA in Ethics, Peace and Global Affairs and is co-founder of Peace Day Philly. Heidi is trained in dialogue development, conflict resolution and crisis intervention. This expertise and experience in capacity-building with vulnerable populations informs her program development work at Drexel.

Michaele Whelan is Vice President for Academic Affairs at Emerson College in Boston and Los Angeles. She has a BA, Summa Cum Laude, from Cornell, and a MA and PhD in English and American Literature from Harvard. In academic and administrative roles, she shaped academic vision/priorities for Brandeis and Tufts Universities. She taught in English, American and Women's Studies at Penn State, Harvard, Tufts and Brandeis. Her focus is gendered narratology in modern/postmodern American literature.

Dawn Michele Whitehead is Senior Director, Global Learning and Curricular Change at AAC&U after transitioning from her current role as Director of Curriculum Internationalization at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. Her work has focused on internationalizing the curriculum through community engagement with local and global community partners. She also uses technology to create global classroom experiences. Her research centers on international service learning focusing on her education abroad programs in Costa Rica, Ghana, Kenya, and the Kingdom of Swaziland.

Ralph Wilcox is Provost and Executive Vice President at the University of South Florida, a global research university dedicated to student success. He is chief academic officer of a multi-campus system serving an increasingly geographically diverse population of more than 48,000 students. His own scholarly expertise is focused on cultural studies and globalization. He holds a PhD from the University of Alberta, Canada, along with degrees from British and American universities.

Ben Wildavsky is director of higher education studies at the Rockefeller Institute of Government and policy professor at the University at Albany. His research focuses on the globalization of universities and the push for innovation in U.S. postsecondary education. A former senior scholar at the Ewing Marion Kauffman Foundation and guest scholar at the Brookings Institution, he is the author of the award-winning book The Great Brain Race: How Global Universities Are Reshaping the World (2010).

David Wilson serves as Associate Vice Chancellor and is the campus Senior International Officer (SIO) at the University of Nebraska - Lincoln. In this role he is responsible for the coordination of international agreements, partnership degree programs, international student exchanges and degree-completion programs. Professor Wilson also oversees Education Abroad, International Engagement, Programs in English as a Second Language, and the American Exchange Center.

Carrie Wojenski is the Director of Global Affairs at Sacred Heart University. She is charged with oversight of study abroad programming and global initiatives. Wojenski is also a visiting faculty member at the SIT Graduate Institute. She holds an MA in International Education from the SIT Graduate Institute and an EdD from Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. Her doctoral research examined factors that influenced students' experiences in a COIL pre-departure study abroad intervention.

Rachawan Wongtrirat is the Assistant Director for International Initiatives in the Office of Intercultural Relations at Old Dominion University. She manages and implements programs that enrich the campus life and success of international students, promote international education, and enhance global engagement within university community. Rachawan frequently presents at conferences on topics related to international student retention, leadership, engagement and success. Rachawan has a doctorate in Higher Education Administration with concentration in International Higher Education Leadership.

John J. Wood is Senior Associate Vice Provost for International Education at the University of Buffalo (SUNY) and oversees the university's study abroad programs and institutional affiliations overseas. Wood collaborates with departments in conceptualizing new international agreements and programs. He has administrative responsibility for the academic components of UB's overseas degree programs, including its programs in Singapore. He previously served as Assistant Director of the UB English Language Institute.

Pia Wood is the Associate Provost, Center for International Education at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville. As the Chief International Officer at UTK, she is responsible for oversight of Programs Abroad, International Student and Scholar Services, Linkages/Partnership Agreements, International Student Recruitment, the English Language Institute, and the International House. She has served in a number of elected positions including: President of AIEA (2009-2010) and President of ISASouth. Her academic background includes a BA from the College of William & Mary, and a PhD in Political Science from the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

Michael Woolf, Deputy President for Strategic Development, CAPA International Education, has worked in learning abroad since the 1980s. He has published widely on international education and cultural studies. He has held multiple leadership roles in international education organizations. As an academic, Mike focused on American Studies and taught in Italy and the UK. Mike served on advisory boards in Europe, Asia and the USA including the Board of Directors, The Forum on Education Abroad.

Wesley Young has been the Director of Services for International Students and Scholars at the University of California, Davis since 2003. Prior to this he was Associate Professor of International Studies at Dominican University of California where he taught courses on the international relations of East Asia, and oversaw study abroad programs. He received his PhD in Political Science from UC Berkeley, and has worked and studied in both Europe and Asia.

Eric Zimmerman is Director of Research & Global Engagement at IDC Herzliya. Working together with the President and Provost, Eric established and directed the Academic Affairs, International Engagement and Research Support Offices at the Interdisciplinary Centre (IDC), Herzliya. His portfolio includes responsibility for all competitive research and program grants and the protection of the institutional intellectual property; and developing global partnerships and managing all institutional internationalization agreements, including student exchange, summer and study abroad programs.

Helen Zimmerman is President of the International Education Association of Australia (IEAA) and a senior executive of Navitas Limited, a global education provider. She is a current member of the ETS TOEFL Advisory Group, having previously held roles on government regulatory bodies and peak industry associations. Helen holds qualifications in Asian Studies and education, and is a Fellow of the Australian Institute of Company Directors.

Matthew Zingraff served as Inaugural President of George Mason University – Korea and Interim Vice President for Research at Mason. He has headed many task forces on academic policy, expansion of research funding, and responsible research conduct. A Professor of Sociology, his work on crime and social control has been funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, National Institute of Justice, and others. His findings appear in numerous scholarly outlets.

Not a member of AIEA?

Value the networking opportunities at this conference?

Then apply for AIEA membership for 2015! AIEA membership is open to all senior-level international education leaders at postsecondary institutions, organizations that support international education, and individuals at member institutions and organizations.

To join, visit www.aieaworld.org