

Far Beyond Recruitment

Understanding Chinese International Students and Helping Them Succeed

Wednesday, April 12, 2017

Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, New York

About the Forum

This forum, intended for SIOs, Deans, and Student Affairs leaders, will focus on helping Chinese international students succeed in the US. Over the last decade, the number of Chinese international students has exceeded 50% of all international students in the US. Along with increasing numbers, issues and concerns have been raised about these students' academic integrity, English skills, and acculturation. The thematic forum zooms into this target group to give in-depth treatment from both emic and etic views. The forum intends to bring faculty and administrators (e.g. admissions, enrollment, advising, ESL programs, student affairs and career services) together with SIOs to address the issue by highlighting best practices and showcasing cutting-edge research and statistics. Sponsored by the Association of International Education Administrators (AIEA) and Stony Brook University.

Forum Participants Will

- learn common characteristics among Chinese international students
- hear cutting-edge research and statistics on Chinese international students in the US
- take away innovative ideas and interventions to help Chinese international students succeed
- explore interventions and best practices for other sub-groups of international students
- engage in formal and informal break-out sessions with participants and leaders

Speakers and Panelists

Karin Fischer

Senior Reporter
The Chronicle of Higher Education

Dr. Darla K. Deardorff

Executive Director
AIEA, Duke University

Dr. Jun Liu

Vice Provost, Global Affairs
Dean, International Academic Programs
Professor, Dept. of Linguistics
Stony Brook University

Dr. Agnes He

Chair, Dept. of Asian & Asian American Studies
Director, Center for Multilingual & Intercultural Communication
Stony Brook University

Dr. Jeff Wang

Director, China Office
Special Assistant to the Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
Rutgers University

Dr. Shyam Sharma

Assistant Professor, Program in Writing & Rhetoric
Stony Brook University

Information and Registration Online

www.stonybrook.edu/oga/globalforum/AIEAThematicForum

Register and reserve your conference hotel before March 1 to receive the discounted rate!